Twenty Battleships Awaiting Orders to Protect Interests of United States

TO ENFORCE RESPECT FOR OUR COMMERCE

Sinking of Neutral Ships by Torpedoes Regarded as Indicating a Dangerous Situation—While President Wilson Does Not Believe Germany Will Go to the Length of Attacking American Vessels. There Is Fear in Other Quarters That the Kaiser's Submarines Will Cause Loss of American Ships or American Lives.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The United States navy is being put in readiness for action. It is an admission by the government that the situation is so grave that almost anything is now possible.

The only thing the government can do, in the opinion of the president and his cabinet, is to be prepared for any eventuality, even such as may require the use of the navy and army in order to enforce respect for Germany and every other nation for the lives and property of citizens of the United States.

Germany Wars Against Neutrals. Dispatches announcing the sinking of one neutral vessel and a French ship yesterday showed that Germany is evidently determined to make war against neutrals when found within the limits of the war zone announced by Germany, and this means that the next vessel sunk may be one belonging to the United States.

The president and his cabinet discussed the situation for several hours yesterday and the president is keeping the closest possible touch with all developments. The most significant announcement, however, is that the vessels of the navy are being put in readiness for sea operations. This was made by Secretary Daniels.

Twenty Battleships Ready. Twenty battleships, the secretary said, are now in readiness to respond to any orders that may be given them. Others are being put in readiness and the work of preparation includes all the vessels ranging downward from the battleships to the smallest fighting and defensive craft.

While this is true, the president and members of the cabinet profess to believe that nothing will occur which farther will strain the relations between the United States and Germany.

Farm House Burned In Goshen Township

Word was received in Clearfield this morning that the house occupied by Dorsey Wallace, on the Fred Shaw farm, near the West Goshen school house, had burned this morning.

Mr. Wallace was in Clearfield at the time, and Mrs. Wallace telephoned him that their house, with all its contents, had been destroyed by fire.

Residents of that section of the township state that the family was unable to save any of the furniture. Mrs. Wallace was in the house with her six little children when the fire started, presumably from the chimney, and she was unable to do anything but get the children to a place of safety. She is a sister of Miss Mena Shaw, of the Progress office. Mr. Wallace is a lumber contractor. The house was owned by his wife's uncle, Fred Shaw. The total loss will be heavy.

YOUNG DUBOIS MAN SUICIDE AT RENOVO

Norman Gilnet, a citizen of DuBois, but who had gone to Renovo, where he was employed at the Pennsylvania roundhouse, committed suicide sometime Wednesday night. Gilnet, who was in ill health and who is said to have worried because a letter he expected did not arrive, is believed to have taken his life through despondency.

Wednesday evening he retired to his room in his boarding house, and that was the last seen of him alive. The letter he had been looking for arrived Thursday evening and it was taken to his room by his landlady. Receiving no answer to her knock she opened the door and saw Gilnet sitting upright in a chair, a revolver in his hand. The man was dead, having been instantly killed by the revolver shot many hours previously. Gilnet was about 26 years of age. He had resided in DuBois some time, going to Renovo about a year ago and engaging in work at the roundhouse. He was not married and is survived by his parents and one brother.

Russians Declare Germans Have Made False Claims

(By United Press)
Petrograd, Feb. 20.—The Russian general staff is flatly accusing the German and Austrian governments of having made false claims of victory and of prisoners taken. The Russians say that the case has been exactly the contrary. At Bucharest the Russians have made a retreat, but it was ordered for specific reasons and was perfectly conducted, and the Russian loss was small. The veracity of the reports may be gauged by the fact that the Austrians reported that they had taken 20,000 prisoners in the recent retreat, when in fact there were only 12,000 soldiers in the army at Bukovina. The total loss was 7 officers and 1007 privates. The same is true of the German statements.

EVERYBODY PLEASED WHEN THEY SEE GREAT BOOK OFFER

Readily Show Appreciation of Great Proposition Made
By the Progress

Those who started to clip certificates from The Progress a week ago can now testify to the true merits of the great offer, for the Bible Stories distribution started off with immediate satisfaction to all concerned. All who got their books are proudly showing them to their friends, and commendations and congratulations are already pouring into this office.

Plain, simple language characterizes the style of these stories, which narrate all Bible events from Genesis to Revelation in chronological order and in a modern way.

The book is 6-1/2 x 9 inches in size, 1-3/4 inches thick and bound in a green velvet. It contains more than 800 pages.

It makes no difference how many Bibles you may have, you will want this book of Illustrated Bible Stories. Its wonderful pictures are a surprise to all who have seen them. The publishers expended $50,000 for this work alone, and besides they selected the most appropriate of the famous Tinseltown collection, and these are reproduced in color and inserted throughout the volume. The result is a grand work of art which cannot be surpassed. If you have not yet started to save

Amos H. Rumberger, of Houtzdale, was in town Friday looking up his friends and attending to some business. Mr. Rumberger will be a candidate on the Republican ticket this year for county treasurer, and since he worked up quite an acquaintance in his campaign four years ago for this office, it is thought by many that he will be a hard man to beat out for the nomination, at least.

Measures Would Insure Cleanliness of Food

(By United Press)
Harrisburg, Feb. 20.—A drastic measure is being considered by the senate judiciary special committee regarding the display of food for sale. The measure was drawn by Senator F. H. Groff, of Montgomery, in the interests of public health and would compel all grocers, market places and food vendors to cooperate to that end. The measure would make it unlawful to "exhibit or display for sale any food unless it is covered or protected from contact or contamination by any animal, fowl or insect."

Violations would be made punishable by a $100 fine, three months imprisonment or both.

GREATEST OF WORLD FAIRS OPENED AT SAN FRANCISCO

Vast Pageant in Which Thousands of Persons Joyously Participated

No Formal Ceremonies Marked the Beginning of the Panama-Pacific Exposition—Liberty Bell in Philadelphia Rung for Second Time in Seventy-five Years.

(By United Press)
San Francisco, Feb. 20.—President Wilson today threw his voice over 3000 miles of continuous wires and opened the Panama-Pacific exposition. Directly after opening the exposition he pressed the button at his side, which threw open the gates in Machinery Hall and started the "Fountain of Energy" which stands in front of "The Tower of Jewels." Secretary of Interior Lane is representing the president at the exposition.

Before the exposition was opened guns were fired and a great parade passed through the streets and avenues. The Japanese and Chinese had over 1000 in that part of the parade reserved for "representatives of other nations."

The Panama-Pacific International exposition represents an expenditure of $50,000,000. The critical judgment of experts pronounced the eleven main exhibit buildings, its five courts, 250 pieces of statuary, mural paintings and lighting effects one of the most magnificent ensembles of buildings and grounds ever achieved.

An enormous part of the outlay is represented in the "zone," the amusement street of the fair.

The exhibit palaces include a total area of 2,657,183 square feet. Sixty thousand exhibitors will fill this space, the promoters of the fair declaring that the exhibits will cover the arts, industries and resources of the entire world and summarize the achievements of human history.

Many Special Events

Not only will the exposition be remarkable in its exhibits showing, but in its special events, congresses and conventions, spectacles and pageants. The department of congress has listed between 400 and 500 national and international organizations which will hold their meetings or conventions here. It is estimated that an average of 100 conventions will be held every day during the life of the exposition which will last until December 4.

To house these meetings the city and exposition management have re-

Each will be confined in the deathhouse for ten days prior to his execution.

Mr. Norris has a reputation for the excellence of his work among these ladies, and in his new quarters he will be better prepared than ever to go to the wants of his customers. His courteous treatment of all who do business with him has given him a prestige in the community and the excellence of his work insures the continuance of the public's patronage.

COUNTY CANDIDATES COMING TO FRONT

There is no dearth of patriots willing to serve their county in the fat offices which are to be filled by the voters next fall in Clearfield county. Already a number of candidates have notified their friends that they intend to "run for office," while the air is full of rumors of other citizens who are keeping their ears to the ground in order that they may not miss the call of the voters.

Unless the present legislature changes the date of the primary elections to an earlier day the voters will in September nominate candidates for all but two county offices—sheriff and district attorney. The county offices to be filled are the following: County commissioner, prothonotary, register and recorder and county treasurer. Thus far the following have signified their intention of competing for the nomination:

County Commissioner—Republican—Samuel Hamilton, Hugh Kline, T. R. Weiner, Jesse A. Dale, H. H. Spencer, W. T. DeHaas, D. D. Miller, L. M. Impson, George R. McClellan.

Democrats—M. L. Farrell, Kinsey Sloppy, H. L. Bowman.

Prothonotary—Republicans—John H. Moore, Milford Bratton, John E. Johnson.

Register and Recorder—Republicans—Toney Evans, W. E. Paterson, Ed Chase.

Democrat—Richard M. Reed.

County Treasurer—Republicans—Al Kline, H. L. Jones, Amos H. Rumberger.

Democrats—Austin H. Haney, Ed Shirey.

There may be other aspirants for these offices who will be smoked out later, and the list is certain to be big enough to make the race for the nomination a lively one.

German Reports Fighting Are Flatly Contradicted

(By United Press)

Paris, Feb. 20.—By Henry W. Wood.—Flat contradiction of German reports in the north are being issued by the war officers in the Champagne and Argonne regions. Their reports state that everywhere the advantage has been with the allies. War officials say that Germany had made these reports deliberately in the hope of influencing the Italian parliament, which is now in session, to remain neutral.

The weather is bad everywhere, but the allies have made notable gains, nevertheless. The part which the French artillery plays in the war is more and more effective since the German artillery has been almost silenced. Reports from the front today carried 9 pages of typewritten matter, giving in details what has been previously reported daily.

The German night assault are being coming less and less and it is believed that they have been placed in the German lines.

Asks Separation of Offices Of Register and Recorder

Representative Phillips, of Clearfield county, has presented in the house a bill providing for the repeal of the act of assembly creating the office of register and recorder in Clearfield county. In many of the counties of the state these two offices are separate, and Mr. Phillips believes that it would be a good thing if Clearfield county were to follow the example of other counties and separate the two offices.

The proposed repeal is advocated by those who believe that the two offices should not be held by one man, that the register should have an office disconnected with that of the recorder. The one would be a full-time office of the county, and the other would be a part-time office of the county, which would be created by the court.

Rang the Bell and Startled the Pupils

When the schools in the Market street building were preparing for dismissal at noon Friday the pupils and teachers were startled to hear the school bell ring an alarm of fire. There was some little excitement, but by playing the piano and otherwise soothing the children all of them got out of the building safely and were marched a short distance down the street.

It was at first thought that a real fire had broken out in the building and that the janitor had sounded the alarm, but subsequent investigation proved that a lad had performed that act in a spirit of fun. The boy passed a bad quarter of an hour with the principal, and it is likely that neither will indulge in such a joke for some time to come. Fortunately, most of the pupils believed that the signal was that usually sounded when a fire drill is given.

At last the day for awarding the $50.00 in added cash prizes in the Progress' popular voting contest is here and at 10 o'clock tonight the vote count to determine the happy winners will be started. This time has been anxiously looked forward to by all of the ambitious vote getters and all of the ladies have been making elaborate preparations for the tremendous rush of voting that will come tonight.

Within the few short hours that remain will be deposited and counted the votes that will name the winners of the $25.00, $15.00 and $10.00 cash prizes that were added to the prize list two weeks ago. Just who will make the best showing, lead the field and carry off the first prize is a matter of much interest and absolute uncertainty. The voting from all quarters has been very heavy throughout the day and this evening is sure to produce the greatest rush of voting thus far experienced in the contest. There will be many surprises and the lady who can spring the biggest surprise is going to get that $25.00 in cash.

The voting and subscription getting efforts of all contestants for the past several days has been strenuous and it looks as if all the ladies are bent on the same purpose of winning the best cash prize. Up until the paper went to press this afternoon, clipped coupons and subscriptions had been steadily pouring in from all sections of the county, and all contestants were anxious to have far surpassed their own previous efforts. Records, prize extension and long term subscriptions are noted among the business of all contestants and the battle at the close of the hour tonight is sure to be a lively one.

Many Voluntary Subscriptions
Many persons have called at the Progress office during the past few days to make voluntary contributions.

Supreme Court Decision of Interest to Clearfield Borough Council

John M. Grey, borough solicitor, has called the attention of the Progress to the issue of the city and county of cases decided by the Pennsylvania supreme court. The case of the borough of Reynolds v. the Reynoldsville Water Company, decided in this court.

The borough of Reynolds, in a resolution of the borough council in 1913, stipulated its right to become the owner of the Reynoldsville water works, and a request was made upon the water company that the borough be permitted to exercise the right of the water company in order that the borough might acquire the right of creating and maintaining the water supply system. This resolution was adopted and the borough of Reynolds was appointed a committee to negotiate with the Reynoldsville Water Company.

If you buy out of town, and we buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think of it?

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1915

Good evening! What part are you taking in the work of upbuilding Clearfield?

If you go abroad this summer, be sure to take your aeroplane umbrella with you.

If you are bothered by a spring poet, shoot him on the spot or any other part of his anatomy.

President Wilson's shipping bill has been laid on the shelf, and the president will follow the bill later.

Don't get excited until a German submarine attacks an American vessel, then prepare to march upon Berks county.

Many persons condemn Billy Sunday for his sensationalism because they do not want to be reminded of their sins.

Possibly Russia is playing a strong strategic card in permitting Germany to capture and feed some of the czar's surplus soldiers.

If the Washington were living by the sword, it would be difficult for him to maintain a candidate for the presidency and be unable to tell a lie.

Germany might save more food for her own people, if she were to release the half million prisoners she claims to have captured since the war began.

Germany short of food? What has become of the large stocks of provisions which that country is said to have had on hand, sufficient to last the people for years?

What this state wants are game laws for the benefit of the legitimate hunters, not in the interest of the pot hunters and game hogs who are back of the Kalbfus bills.

Clearfield merchants who realize that an advertisement in the Progress is read by more prospective customers than is any other daily newspaper in Clearfield county.

Trouble is, the young men who loaf on the sidewalk to the discommoding women never read the newspapers and do not know what nice things are being said about them.

And at that, Germany is right in declaring that England would resort to drastic tactics if she were placed in the same position as that in which the fatherland finds itself.

The slowness in which federal offices are being filled may be explained on the supposition that Mr. Bryan cannot find "deserving Democrats" in sufficient numbers to fill the places.

Texas proposes to enact a law prohibiting the carrying of deadly weapons to church, and it is not made plain whether this bill is aimed at the toughs or at women who wear big hatpins.

People who are advising the Belgians to leave their own country and settle elsewhere never stop to think that the Belgians might want to remain in their own country because they love it.

Word comes from Amsterdam to the effect that Germany is now fighting "without regard to consequences." Well, what else has Germany been doing ever since she started in to destroy Belgium? She certainly has had no regard or consequences to other people.

Bryan, Hobson & Co., who are trying to get up a war with Japan, might find themselves incapacitated by age or mental disabilities if hostilities between the United States and Japan were to start.

New Yorkers want Sunday baseball, but the saloon keepers oppose this, claiming it would injure their Sunday business. We thought all saloons were prohibited by law from opening on the Sabbath day in Gotham.

A cigarette dropped in a pool room set fire to a hotel in Ebensburg and a quarter of a million dollars worth of property was destroyed. The fellow who dropped the cigarette lives to repeat the trick in some other hotel.

The Panama-Pacific exposition was formally opened today, and the biggest fair the world has ever seen will last until December. Many eastern people would like to attend the fair, but the fare is just a little too steep for them.

New York is the only large city in the United States bearing the same name as the state in which it is located, but there are many towns in counties of the same name which will some day be just as important as New York is, relatively.

STARVING OUT GERMANY

Great Britain is fully justified in preventing foodstuffs from reaching Germany, if this can be done, and Germany is equally justified in endeavoring to procure the foodstuffs. But neither nation has a right to endanger the lives of neutral people or to interfere with the legitimate traffic of these countries, unless the latter are discovered to be supplying food to one or the other belligerent. Germany proposes to attack with submarine boats all ships carrying food or armament to England, while England seeks to protect her own merchant vessels from German attack by flying on them the flags of neutral countries.

The United States has been forced to demand of Germany that she take special pains to see that the German submarines do not attack American ships. The German government—which is the kaiser—has replied that if the American ships sail within the war zone defined by the kaiser they must run risks similar to those encountered by English ships. This condition of affairs is very annoying to the American government, for if a German submarine were to attack an American ship and sink her, thus causing the death of Americans, the government of the United States would be compelled to regard the action as an unfriendly one.

On the other hand, England has been admonished not to use the American flag for the purpose of deceiving the Germans. Germany has declared that this attempt to deceive her has made it incumbent upon her to regard all ships entering the war zone as being in the service of England and that under the circumstances it would be the safest plan for the American ships to keep away from the danger zone. There is no doubt that the action of England in using the American flag to protect her own vessels has increased the perils of American vessels, and the English course must be condemned as being without regard for the welfare of American shipping.

That Germany is fighting for her self-preservation is apparent, and that she will continue to fight "regardless of consequences" no one doubts. Her people are demanding food, which they cannot get because of the British blockade. To injure England and prevent food ships from reaching London the kaiser is prepared to go to any lengths. Already two Norwegian ships have been sunk by mines and torpedoes and the vessels of other neutral nations will not be respected by Germany. If, however, the kaiser continues to destroy neutral ships he will bring about what he would be supposed to wish to prevent—the joining in the war of the neutral states, all of whom would unite with the allies in crushing Germany.

A DOUBTFUL REPORT

The news service which furnishes the Progress with its daily report of the happenings of the world is regarded as one of the most reliable associations in the United States. We believe this new service is in the main accurate; at least the Progress has heretofore found the news it sends out trustworthy, and we would regret to learn that our confidence in the reliability of the association had been misplaced.

The reports of the war in Europe, of the doings in congress, of accidents and crimes and of nearly all other happenings of public interest which have been transmitted to the Progress through the United Press have been entirely satisfactory so far as accuracy is concerned. Yesterday, however, this paper received a dispatch from Chicago which, although we printed it, because we have faith in the honesty of the news service, has caused us some perturbation since we saw the item in print.

In the hurry of gathering news from all quarters of the globe press associations are to be excused if, occasionally during the year they fail to verify their news. The item in question was so unusual that it at once struck us that somebody was trying to play a joke on the United Press. It was, therefore, only because of our strong faith and reliance in the integrity of the United Press that the Progress allowed the statement to find a place in these columns that out in Chicago thieves had robbed a newspaper office, getting away with one thousand dollars. If this report is true, then Chicago newspaper offices must be different from those in other parts of the country. But think of an editor having one thousand dollars all in one lump!

Text of German Note To American Warning

Berlin, Feb. 20.—The imperial government has examined the communication from the United States government in the same spirit of good will and friendship by which the communication appears to have been dictated. The imperial government is in accord with the United States government that for both parties it is in a high degree desirable to avoid misunderstandings which might arise from the occurrence of incidents which might trouble the friendly relations which so far happily exist between the two governments.

With regard to the assuring of these friendly relations, the German government believes that it may all the more reckon on a full understanding with the United States, as the procedure announced by the German admiralty, which was fully explained in the note of the 4th inst., is in no way directed against legitimate commerce and legitimate shipping of neutrals, but represents solely a measure of self-defense, imposed on Germany by her vital interests, against England's method of warfare, which is contrary to international law and which so far no protest by neutrals has succeeded in bringing back to the generally recognized principles of law as existing before the outbreak of war.

In order to exclude all doubt regarding these cardinal points, the German government once more begs leave to state how things stand. Until now Germany has scrupulously observed valid international rules regarding naval warfare. At the very beginning of the war Germany immediately agreed to the proposal of the American government to ratify the new Declaration of London, and took over its contents unaltered and without formal obligation, into her prize law.

Obeded Sea Rules
The German government has obeyed these rules even when they were diametrically opposed to her military interests. For instance, Germany allowed the transportation of provisions to England from Denmark until today, though she was well able, by her sea forces, to prevent it. In contradistinction to this attitude, England has not even hesitated at a second infraction of international law if by such means she could paralyze the peaceful commerce of Germany with neutrals. The German government will be the less obligated to enter into details as these are set down sufficiently, though not exhaustively, in the American note to the British government dated December 29 as a result of five months' experience.

All these encroachments have been made, as has been admitted, in order to cut off all supplies from Germany and thereby starve her peaceful civil population—a procedure contrary to all humanitarian principles. Neutrals have been unable to prevent the interruption of their commerce with Germany, which is contrary to international laws.

The American government, as Germany readily acknowledges, has protested against the British procedure. In spite of these protests and protests from other neutral states, the British could not be induced to cut off from the course of action she has followed.

SUPERB VIEW OF

Vast City, Extending Two and a Half Miles Along Shores of San Francisco Bay, Presents Scene of Unparalleled Brilliance and Interest.

Forty-two Foreign Nations and Forty-three States Are Officially Represented by Exhibits at Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Two Hundred and Fifty Buildings in All and Sixty Thousand Individual Exhibitors Combine to Present Grandest Epitome of World's Progress Ever Celebrated.

TO give an adequate word picture of the mighty Panama-Pacific International Exposition is almost impossible, particularly when one comes to a consideration of the color scheme and the indirect lighting system by which neither are nor incandescent is present to affront the eye. And yet, approaching the Exposition either from the bay of San Francisco or from over the hills on any of the car lines that travel to its gates, these are the first features that thrill with wonder and anticipation.

Like a Dream City.

Looking down on the hundreds of acres of gleaming domes and lofty spires, mammoth arches and extended colonnades, lawns and flowers, noble palms and forestation, with the kaleidoscope of colors blending over all, the vision is one to recall some dream city. Looking down on this same vision by night, with the subdued effulgence of millions of concealed lights investing the whole with an incomparable radiance, one in very truth seems to view the realization of a glorious dream. Two miles and a half in length and a half a mile in width, this spread of beauty curves in a demilune in a sheltered hollow along the shores of San Francisco Bay. The heights of San Francisco are back of it, the bay before and across the bay the Marin hills, with Mount Tamalpais, the majestic, rising in grandeur. This is the greater panorama that frames the Exposition, a situation just inside the Golden Gate.

This $50,000,000 Exposition is built to a general ground plan, the plot being laid out by Edward F. Bennett, the noted city planner of New York. From the main group of eight exhibit palaces, covering eighty-five acres, to the remotest corner of the grounds, the Exposition has a relation to each other and to the boulevards in the general plan.

Center Radiating Center.

The radiating center of the Exposition is the Palace of Fine Arts, which is the center of the main group of buildings.

formed by eight of the eleven main exhibit palaces. Entrance to this court is by the tower gate, the great arch beneath the Tower of Jewels, the high tower on the grounds, rising 435 feet in scintillating grandeur.

The Tower of Jewels is directly opposite the Scott Street or main entrance gates to the Exposition, the South Gardens, 800 feet across, extending from the entry gates to the tower and along the frontages of the four palaces of the main group, which faces south.

Dominating the east side of the gardens is the great Festival Hall, suggested by the Theatre des Beaux Arts type of French architecture. In this hall is the greatest pipe organ in the world. Here will be held the musical, literary and dramatic features, and the congresses of the world—400 in all will meet at the Exposition—will hold their sessions. Particular attention has been given to the acoustic properties so that each person in the 5,000 seats of the auditorium is assured of hearing distinctly everything from the stage.

Mighty Palace of Horticulture.

Nine hundred feet across the South Gardens, on the west end, is the mighty Palace of Horticulture, its great dome of glass, 162 feet in diameter, being a reproduction of the dome of the mosque of Ahmed I. at Constantinople. Here will be assembled what experts have declared to be the most complete exhibit of horticultural products ever gathered under one roof in the world.

The Palace of Horticulture cost $341,000.

The four exhibit palaces fronting the South Gardens are, in the order they appear as one faces them from the gardens, the Palace of Varied Industries to the extreme right, next the Palace of Manufactures, Tower of Jewels, Palace of Liberal Arts and Palace of Education. The four palaces that complete this group face San Francisco Bay. They are the Palaces of Mines and Metallurgy, Transportation, Food Products and Agriculture. These eight structures are bounded by four great boulevards, the Avenue of Palms on the south, the Avenue of Progress on the east, the Esplanade on the bay shore and the Avenue of Administration on the west. Facing this group from the east, across the Avenue of Progress, is the Palace of Machinery, the largest frame building under one roof in the world, 987 feet long by 287 feet in width and costing $659,665. Here will be assembled everything in the world of machinery. A better idea of the dimensions of the behemoth of buildings when the fact is recalled that Lincoln Beachey made an exhibition flight with his aeroplane inside the building. Four carloads of nails were used in its construction and 1,500 tons of nuts, bolts and washers.

Palace of Fine Arts.

Facing the main group of palaces from the west and across the Avenue of Administration and the Fine Arts Lagoon in the Palace of Fine Arts, curving around the lagoon one-fifth of a mile in length. This building is of steel and concrete, thoroughly fireproofed in order to protect the masterpieces of the world's art which will be on exhibition. The lagoon is one of the beautiful features of the outdoor decoration scheme. Thousands of birds, both wild fowl and tame, are already making it their home, while graceful swans and birds of plumage will glide over its limpid surface or preen in the flowers, shrubs and trees of its shores.

The Palace of Fine Arts cost $550,000. The Fine Arts Palace, Machinery Palace and the Horticultural Palace comprise, with the eight other exhibit palaces and Festival Hall, the main architectural grouping of the central area of the Exposition grounds.

The dimensions of the buildings of the unit of eight are: Palace of Varied Industries, 414 feet by 541 feet, floor area 219,000 square feet, height 67 feet, cost $312,621.

Palace of Education, 394 feet by 525

1.—Court of the Four Seasons, showing western portals, to the left, and, to the right, courts extending to the Marina and San Francisco Bay. There are many of these beautiful sunken pools in the various courts, reflecting, mirroring the splendor of the architectural and sculptural adornment. The facade extending toward the bay is that of the Palace of Food Products.

2.—The marvelous effects in the night illuminations can be appreciated from this picture taken of the Greek-American colonnade of the Palace of Fine Arts. Facing the limpid waters of the Fine Arts Lagoon, the bases of these mighty columns bedded in the foliage that fringes its shores, the effect by night is a vision of beauty long to linger in the memory. The north and south wings of this colonnade extend 1,100 feet along the Fine Arts Lagoon.

3.—The great triumphal arch, the Arch of the Rising Sun, surmounted by a symbolic sculptured group, "The Nations of the East." The howdah upon the elephant rises 185 feet above the floors of the Court of the Universe.

4.—Among the rare exhibits in the Exposition's continuous live stock show are these long tailed Japanese chickens, which are bred especially for the emperor of Japan and whose valuation runs to as high as $2,000 for a single bird. These chickens are housed in glass, this precaution being necessary to preserve the fine quality and sheen of their wonderful feathers.

5.—On the left in this view of the Avenue of Palms is the stupendous Tower of Jewels, 435 feet high, or as high as the average thirty-five story building. This tower is in seven successive terraces and is crowned by a great globe, symbolizing the world. The tower is adorned with 125,000 cut-glass prisms that tremble with the wind. At night they scintillate with all the colors of the rainbow as flashlights play upon them. On the right is seen the imposing doorway of the Palace of Liberal Arts, after the famous portal of the Santa Cruz hospice at Toledo, Spain.

Lesson VIII.—First Quarter, For Feb. 21, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. iv, 1-13, 18. Memory Verses, 10, 11—Golden Text, Jas. 1, 22—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

As we read this chapter and the two following and vii, 1, 2, we cannot but notice the frequent mention of the ark of the Lord, or the ark of God, or some of its other titles, and when we recall that it was a principal vessel in the tabernacle and the only one of all the tabernacle vessels that continued to be used in the temple of Solomon, that it was made specially to be a receptacle for the two tables of the law, that over its blood stained lid or mercy seat and between the cherubim the glory of the Lord was revealed, and that from above the mercy seat the Lord communed with Moses, we must be persuaded that this ark had a wonderful significance. And when we read in Rev. vi, 19, of the temple of God in heaven being opened and there being seen in it the ark of His testament we stand in still greater awe before this holy vessel. It is mentioned forty times in the books of Moses and twenty-eight times in Joshua, chiefly in connection with the crossing of the Jordan. In our own chapter and those following it is mentioned thirty-seven times, so that we can easily see that the interest centers upon it.

Lesson verse 2 shows us Israel smitten before the Philistines, and we think that we hear again the words of Joshua, "O Lord, what shall I say when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies?" (Josh. ii, 8.) But, as then, so now, it was because of sin in the camp. As the elders considered the present defeat they did not seem to think that the difficulty might be with Israel, nor did they turn to the Lord, but said, "Let us fetch the ark of the covenant of the Lord that it may save us" (verse 3). The presence of the ark caused Israel to shout with a great shout, and when the Philistines understood that it was because the ark was come into the camp they said that God was come into the camp, and that God was come into the camp, and the gods that smote the Egyptians. On the part of both Israel and the Philistines it seemed like pure superstition. The latter knew no better, but for Israel to put confidence in the ark rather than in the Lord remains us of their worship of Aaron's golden calf and, away beyond the time of this lesson, their worship of the serpent of brass (II Kings xviii, 4).

Is it not the same today with those who think there is any merit in the mere reading of a chapter in the Bible, or saying a prayer, or taking the communion, or in any religious formality? Anything that is not real heart dealing with the living God is only a form of superstition. The Philistines were stirred to great fervor by the cry of their leaders, "The strong, giant yourselves like men and fight" (verse 6), and the Lord delivered Israel into their hands so that 30,000 were slain, including Eli's two sons, and the ark of God was taken (verses 10, 11). Poor old Eli waited with fear and trembling for the news from the battle, and when he heard the sad news, and that the ark of God had been taken to fall off his son's back and had broken his neck and died. He was ninety-eight years old and had judged Israel forty years (verses 12-14). I think that while outwardly it was a broken neck it may have been inwardly a broken heart. In the same day it seems as if Phinehas' wife was also taken away (verses 19-22), so that a very calamity came to the house of Eli in one day (iii, 34). Thus suddenly a great calamity was visited upon him and his family, and so shall it be at the end of time.

The story of the ark in the hands of the Philistines, chapters v and vi makes us think of Jerusalem, a burdensome thing for all people, and that all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces (Jer. xli, 23). The Philistines found the ark a very grievous thing to have in their midst, and after a few months (vi, 1) they were glad to send it back to Israel. The story of the new cart and the two milk cows tied to it, with their calves shut up at home and the cows taking the straight way to Beth-Shemesh, towing as they went, but not turning aside to the right hand or to the left (vi, 7-12), is a wonderful record of the hand of the Lord upon dumb beasts and brings to mind the dominion over all sheep and oxen, beasts of the field, fowl of the air and fish of the sea that has had some foreshadowings all the way along, but will be fully seen when the kingdom comes (Is. vi, 60, Heb. ii, 8).

The men of Beth-Shemesh rejoiced greatly to welcome the ark, and they offered burnt offerings and sacrifices unto the Lord, but they made a sad mistake when they looked into the ark, and they suffered greatly for it. As we said at the beginning of this study, the ark was made to keep the holy law of God, which Israel could not keep. The blood sprinkled upon the mercy seat from year to year (Lev. xvi) told of the demands of the law met by a substitute, even Christ, the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth (Rom. x, 4). Life never was nor could be by the law, which can only bring us all in guilty before God and is therefore called the ministration of death (Gal. iii, 21; Rom. vii, 10; II Cor. iii, 7).

VOTING FOR CASH ENDS AT 10 O'CLOCK TONIGHT

days and made subscription payments to the vote credit of the various contestants. Many more persons will call at this office and leave new or renewal subscriptions to the daily or weekly Progress before the closing hour of 10 o'clock tonight. The mails, too, have been bringing their quota of coupons, subscriptions and good wishes for the ladies.

Votes Sure to Run High
A number of the contestants and several of their friends and co-workers have made anxious inquiry of the contest department regarding the voting at this time. The general point of these inquiries was how high the vote is likely to go for the first cash prize.

To all of these inquiries we can simply say that we have no idea and no means of knowing how high the vote will go, and of course could give no information of this kind if we did know. One thing is certain, however, and that is that the vote deposit of all of the contestants for the past two week period will be very much heavier than was expected. This is assured by the excellent success of the contestants during the past few days and more especially by the big rush of voting today.

The only safe rule to follow for the contestants who expect to win the substantial cash prizes is to get and deposit every subscription that they can possibly get. One subscription that can now be had, if missed or neglected, might be just the one needed to make victory sure for the contestant. Friends of the contestants are sure to be most loyal at this important time of the contest and every lady should do her very best now, and then there will be nothing to regret after the clock strikes 10 tonight.

Three Sure to Win.

So, three of the active ladies in the contest are sure to be the winners of the cash prizes tonight. Of course not all can win and some are destined to lose just as others will win in this first rally of the big campaign. If every lady does her best in the vote getting now, however, she can win or lose with the same feeling of satisfaction and thereby her forces for the final week of voting that is yet to come and that will determine the winners of the grand contest prizes. It must not be supposed that because any lady is not the winner of one of the cash prizes that she will not be a winner of one of the big contest prizes next week, and neither is there any certainty that the winners of the cash prizes will be the winners of leading prizes at the end of the contest. What will determine the winners of the grand contest prizes one week from tonight will be the efforts of the ladies themselves and the assistance of their friends and co-workers at this time as well as during the one week that remains of the contest.

The active ladies in the competition for the cash prizes tonight, as well as for the grand prizes next week are running close and now they may yet be a winner in any event. Let it be worth the effort to win?

AMERICAN NAVY READY TO GUARD SEA RIGHTS

plies to the notes from both Germany and Great Britain, the United States will declare that such action will be held strictly accountable for any damage it may inflict upon American commerce and for the loss of American lives for which they may be responsible.

It also has been declared that no representations will be made either to Germany or Great Britain concerning the way they shall conduct their warfare against our ships.

From Attack by Germany
There is a strong feeling that both American lives and property are being lost as the result of attacks by Germany. With this fear, and there is full realization that such losses will produce an immediate crisis which will bring relations with Germany to the breaking point.

In the reply to the German note, the United States will reject absolutely the contention of Germany that neutrals will be themselves responsible if they suffer loss within the area which Germany has proclaimed to be a war zone. The United States will deny the right of Germany to close any part of the ocean to neutral commerce, and it will be insisted that Germany must, therefore, assume all responsibility for whatever happens.

CHAPTER V.

O'Connell Visits Angela.

NATHANIEL KINGSNORTH stayed only long enough in Ireland to permit of Angela's recovery. He went into the sick-room only once. When Angela saw him she turned her back on him and refused to speak to him.

For a moment a flush of pity for his young sister gave him a pang at his heart. She looked so frail and worn, so desperately ill. After all, she was his sister, and, again, had she not been punished? He was willing to forget the foolish things she had done and the bitter things she had said.

Let bygones be bygones. He realized that he had neglected her. He would do so no longer. Far from it. When they returned to London all that would be remedied. He would take care of her in every possible way. He felt a genuine thrill course through him as he thought of his generosity.

To all of this Angela made no answer.

Stung by her silence, he left the room and sent for his other sister. When Monica came he told her that whenever Angela wished to recognize his magnanimity she could send for him. She would not find him unforgetting.

To this Angela sent no reply.

When the fever had passed and she was stronger arrangements were made for the journey to London.

As Angela walked unsteadily to the carriage, leaning on the arm of the nurse, Nathaniel came forward to assist her. She passed him without a word. Nor did she speak to him once nor answer any remark of his during the long journey on the train.

When they reached London she refused to go to the Kingsnorth house, where her brother lived, but went at once to a distant cousin of her mother's, Mrs. Wrexford, and made her home with her, as she had often done before. She refused to hold any further communication with her brother, despite the ministrations of her sister, Monica, and Mrs. Wrexford.

Mrs. Wrexford was a gentle little white capped widow, whose only happiness in life seemed to be in worrying over others' misfortunes. She was on the board of various charitable organizations and was a busy helper in the field of mercy. She worshiped Angela, as she had her mother before her. That something serious had occurred between Angela and her brother, Mrs. Wrexford realized, but she could find out nothing by questioning Angela. Every time she asked her anything relative to her attitude, Angela was silent.

One day she begged Mrs. Wrexford never to speak of her brother again. Mrs. Wrexford respected her wishes and watched her and nursed her through her convalescence with a tender solicitude.

When O'Connell's letter came Angela showed it to Mrs. Wrexford, together with her reply.

"Do you mind if I see him here?" Angela asked.

"What kind of man is he?"

"The kind that heroes are made of."

"He writes so strangely—may one say unreservedly? Is he a gentleman?"

"In the real meaning of the word—yes."

"Of good family?"

"Not as we estimate goodness. His family were just simple peasants."

"Do you think it wise to see him?"

"I don't consider the wisdom. I only listen to my heart."

"You—love him?"

"So much of love as I can give is his."

"Oh, my dear!" cried Mrs. Wrexford, thoroughly alarmed.

"Don't be afraid," said Angela quietly. "Our ways lie wide apart. He is working for the biggest thing in life. His work is his life. I am nothing."

"But don't you think it would be indiscreet, dear, to have such a man come here?"

"Why indiscreet?"

"A man who has been in prison!"

and Mrs. Wrexford shuddered at the thought. She had seen and helped so many poor victims of the cruel laws, and the memory of their drawn faces and evil eyes and coarse speech flashed across her mind. She could not recall one coming into her little home.

Angela answered her:

"Yes, he has been in prison, but the crime was for his persecutors, not for him. Still, if you would rather I saw him somewhere else—"

"Oh, no, my dear child. If you wish it—"

"I do. I just want to see him again, as he writes he does me. I want to hear him speak again. I want to wish him Godspeed on his journey."

"Very well, Angela," said the old lady. "As you wish."

A week later Mrs. O'Connell arrived in London. They met in Mrs. Wrexford's little drawing room in the city.

They looked at each other for a few moments without speaking. It was the old story of suffering and other's ease. They had been through the long valley of the shadow of death, and now they were both here.

But Nathaniel thought as he looked at her that the suffering he had gone through passed from him as soon as he saw her. It was worth it—these moments of his life when he was looking at her with the long black night, and when in the heat of the day with the sun's rays around him, the birds and the flowers with

I am a little weak—a little tired. That will pass too."

"If anything had happened to you—or ever should happen!" He buried his face in his hands and moaned:

"Oh, my God! Oh, my God!"

His body shook with the sobs he tried vainly to check. Angela put her hand gently on his shoulder.

"Don't do that," she whispered. He controlled himself with an effort. "It will be over in a moment. Just a moment. I am sorry."

He suddenly knelt at her feet, his head bowed in reverence. "God help me!" he cried faintly. "I love you, I love you!"

She looked down at him, her face transfigured.

He loved her!

The beat of her heart spoke it. "He loves you!" The throbbing of her brain shouted it. "He loves you!" The cry of her soul whispered it. "He loves you!"

She stretched out her hands to him: "My love is yours, just as yours is mine. Let us join our lives and give them to the suffering and the oppressed."

He looked up at her in wonder. "I don't. Think what I am!"

"You are the best that is in me. We are mates."

"A peasant! A beggar!"

"You are the noblest of the noble."

"A convict."

"Our Saviour was crucified so that his people should be redeemed. You have given the pain of your body so that your people may be free."

"It wouldn't be fair to you," he pleaded.

"If you leave me it will be unfair to us both."

"Oh, my dear one! My dear one!"

He folded her in his arms.

"I'll give the best of my days to guard you and protect you and bring you happiness."

"I am happy now," and her voice died to a whisper.

Three days afterward Nathaniel Kingsnorth returned late at night from a political banquet.

It had been a great evening. At last it seemed that life was about to give him what he most wished for. His already wonderful array of brilliant preparations of seasoned statesmen and admirable speakers. Kingsnorth had spoken so powerfully. Being one of the only men at the banquet who had enjoyed even a brief glimpse of Ireland, he made the solution of the Irish question the main topic of his speech. Speaking lucidly and earnestly, he placed before them his panacea for Irish ills. His hearers were enthralled.

When he sat down the cheering was prolonged.

When he left the gathering he was in a condition of ecstasy. Lying back amid the cushions during his long drive home, he closed his eyes and pictured the future. His imagination ran riot. It took wings and flew from height to height. He saw himself the leader of a party—"the Kingsnorth party"—controlling his followers with a hand of iron and driving them to vote according to his judgment and his decree.

By the time he had reached home he had entered the cabinet and was being spoken of as the probable prime minister.

He poured out a liquor and stood sipping it as he turned over the letters brought by the night's post. One arrested him. It had been delivered by hand and was marked "Most Urgent."

As he read the letter every vestige of color left his face.

WHEN REED RULED

Johnstown Wasn't In It

By "Bud" Fisher

And Raised a Row in Congress by Counting a Quorum.

NOW THE QUESTION AROSE.

The Issue That Moved the "Czar" to Overturn Both Democratic and Republican Precedents and Put the House in an Uproar.

In his "Life of Thomas Brackett Reed," popularly known as "Czar" Reed, Samuel W. McCall relates how the great question of the quorum that was counted arose. The famous issue came up shortly after Reed's reelection as speaker in December, 1880. The Republicans had so narrow a majority that business would have been difficult even without the filibustering of the opposition.

On Jan. 20, 1890, Dalzell reported from the committee on elections an award of a contested seat to a Republican.

Crisp raised the question of consideration, and only 102 members responded, or two less than a quorum. Not merely was it beyond the power of the Republicans to produce a quorum at that time, but it appeared equally certain that they would not be able to produce one at any time during that Congress.

Reed had carefully planned to meet the emergency which had long seemed to him inevitable and had determined upon his course. But the element of doubt in the house would sanction the radical course which he meditated. He was intending to overturn not merely Democratic precedents, but Republican precedents as well.

Times almost without number the leaders of his own party had maintained that the constitutional quorum was to be determined by the roll call and not by the bodily presence of members. The position had never seriously been questioned that if a majority of the representatives failed to answer to their names on the calling of the roll there was no quorum present for the transaction of business, even if every member might actually be present in the hall of the house.

"Instead of ordering the roll to be called again Reed calmly said, 'The clerk directs the clerk to record the names of the following members present and refusing to vote.' He then proceeded to name a number of Democrats and among them Carlisle and other Democratic leaders who were present when their names were called and who refrained from voting.

"At once the house was in an uproar. There was an explosion as violent as was ever witnessed in a legislative body. The speaker's recital of the names was interrupted by passionate remonstrance. His course was denounced as revolutionary. For a considerable time the tumult stopped the business of the house. Reed remained unmuffled, and when the noise would for a moment subside he would add to his count of Democrats present and not voting.

"One member of much dignity, but not conspicuous for sense of humor, gravely arose with a book in his hand and said, 'I deny your right, Mr. Speaker, to count me as present, and I desire to read from the parliamentary law on that subject.' Reed called a hearty laugh by coolly saying in reply and with his customary drawl: 'The chair is making a statement of fact that the gentleman from Kentucky is present. Does he deny it?'

"After the noise had subsided sufficiently for the speaker to make a connected statement he proceeded to state the question to the house: 'The chair trusts this subject in orderly fashion and will submit his opinion to the house, which, if not composed in by the house, can be overruled on an appeal taken from the decision.'

"He then proceeded to state his opinion in a few words. Referring to the constitutional power of the house to compel the attendance of absent members, he said: 'If members can be present and refuse to exercise their function to wit, not be counted as a quorum—that provision would seem to be entirely nugatory. Inasmuch as the constitution only provides for their attendance, that attendance is enough. If more was needed the constitution would have provided for more.'

Disorder was renewed, but after a hot debate the ruling was sustained. Reed's party standing by him to a man, and the supreme court subsequently confirmed the point.

"Young men of this country do not know how to throw a kiss gracefully," said a college professor. "It takes a young Mexican to perform the act gracefully."

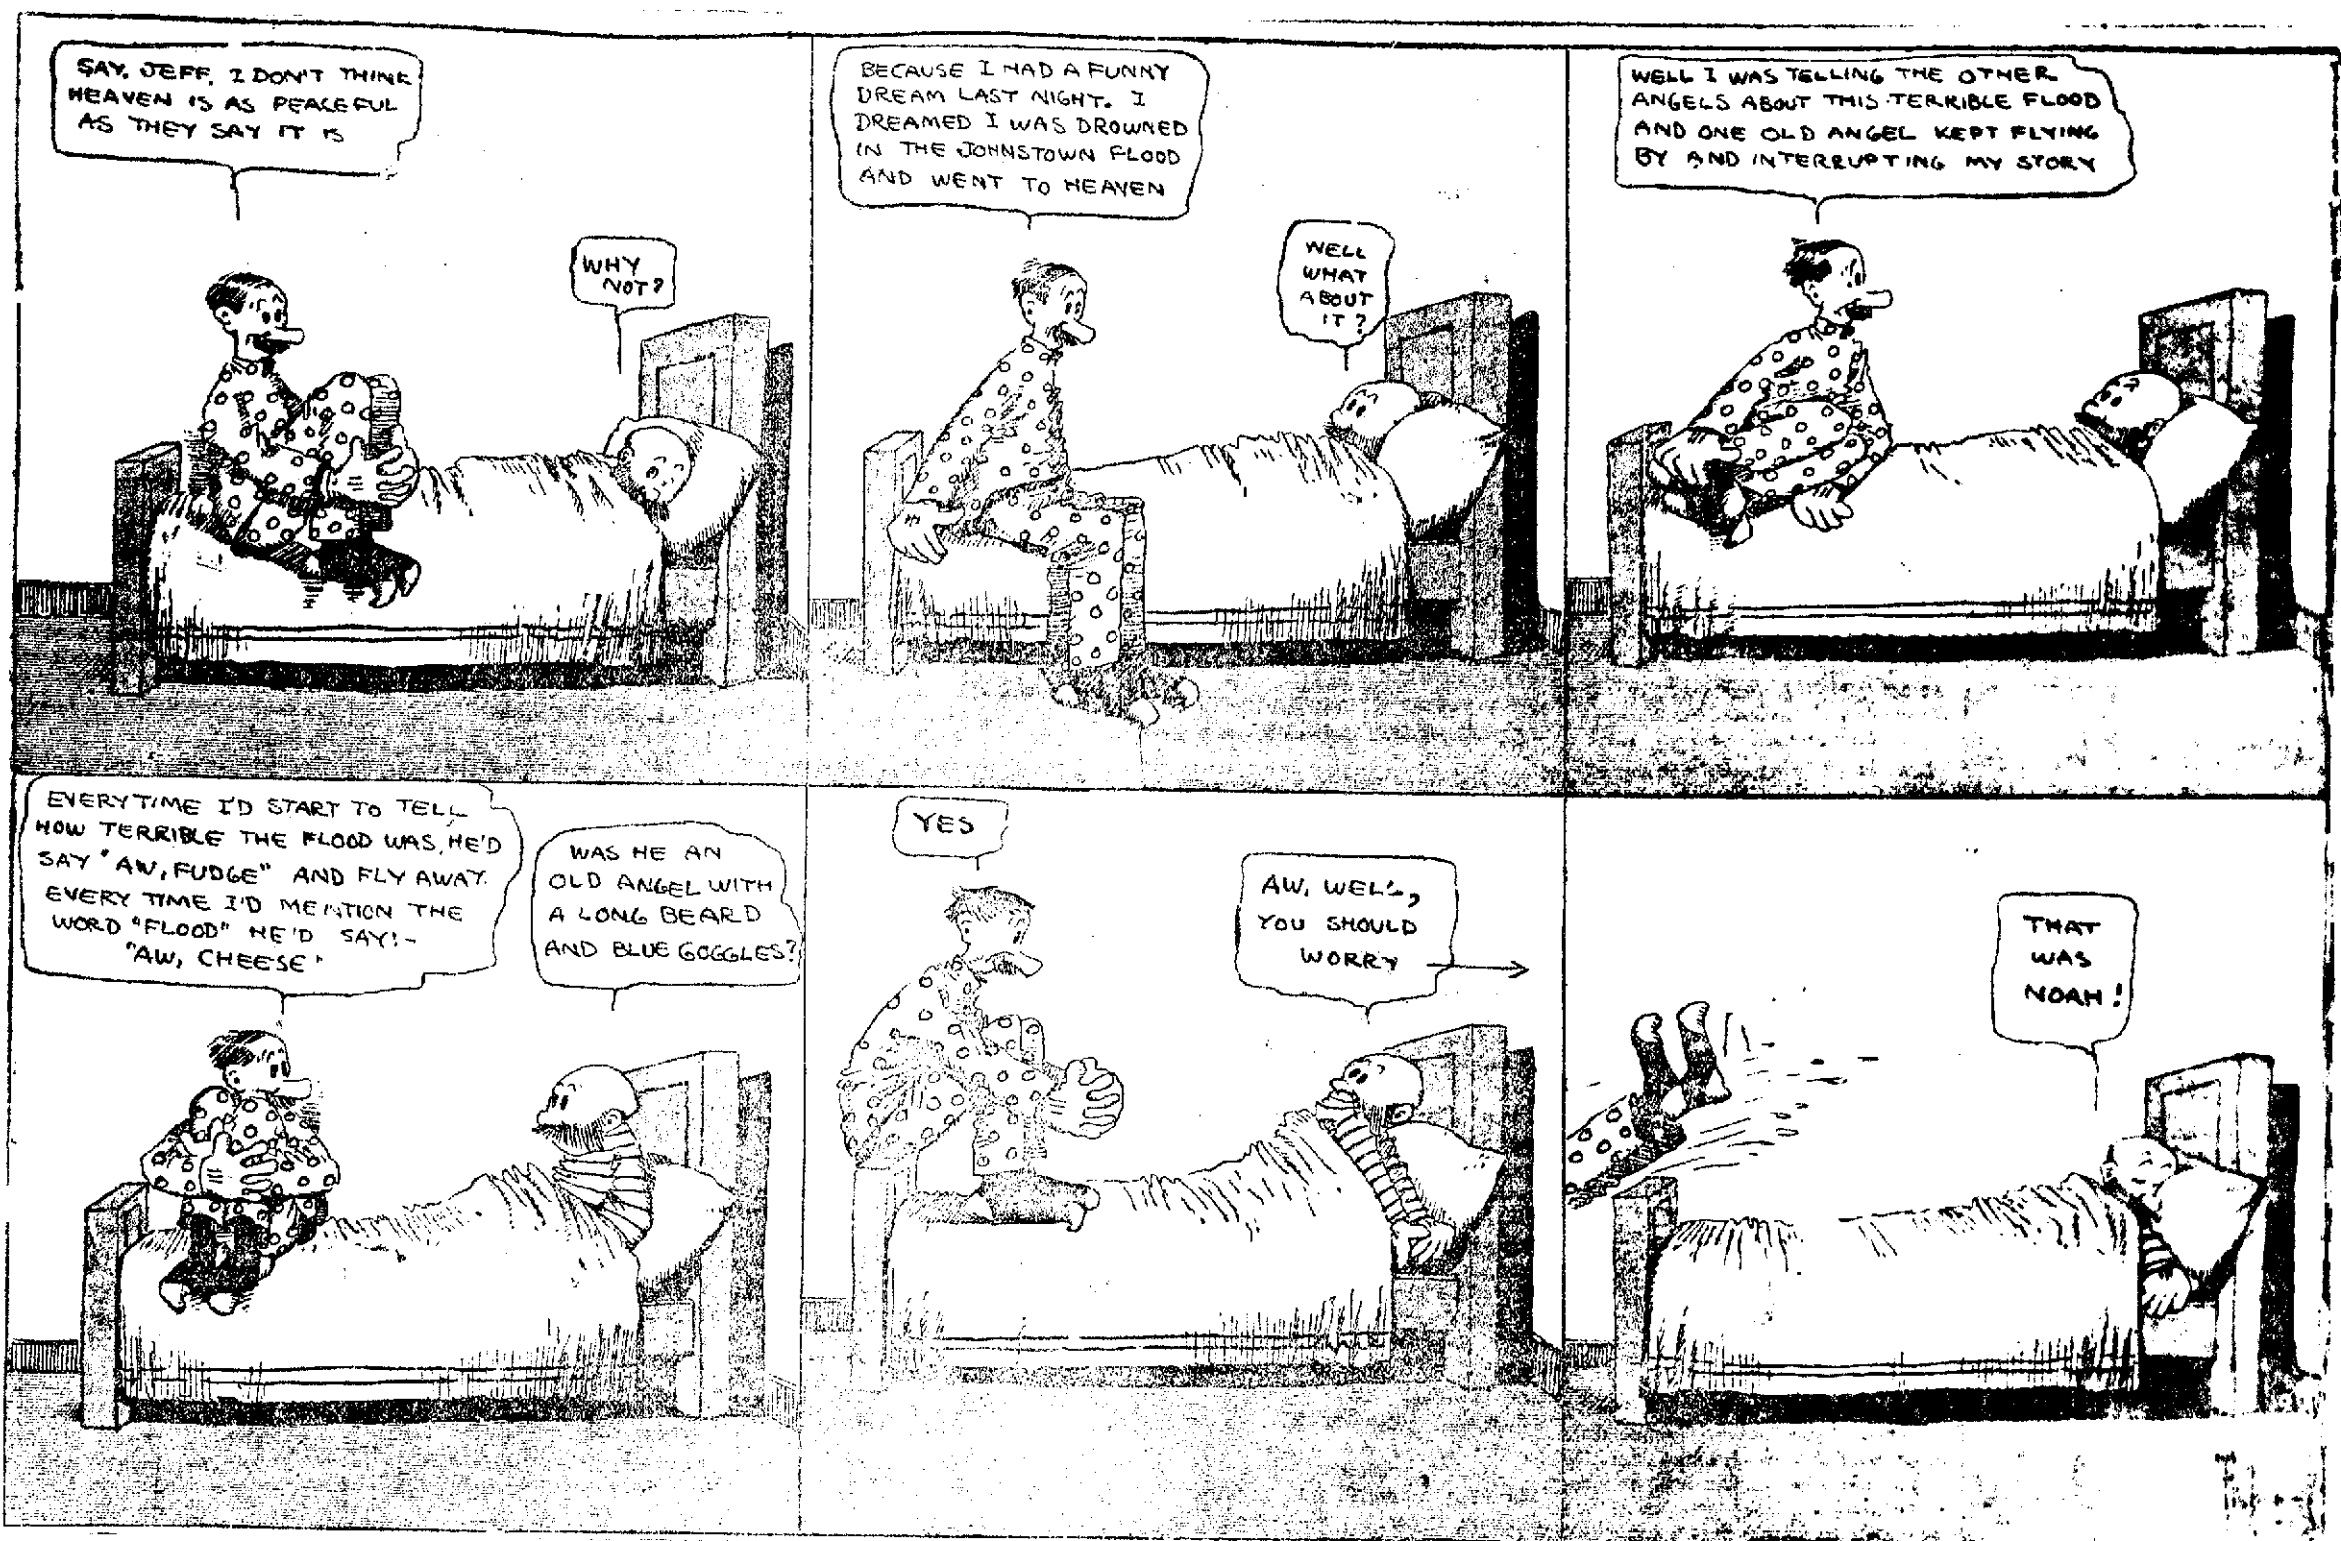

"He brings the tips of his fingers together, touches them gently with his lips and, spreading his hand out as he makes the throw, waits five sweet kisses to his ladylove by five different postures."—Chicago Tribune.

THE ANNUAL MOVING HABIT.

Already in local newspapers are appearing announcements of the thousands of farm sales that occur each year as tenants make their annual or biennial shifts. If the facts were known it would probably be realized that the cost in shrinkage of values brought about by such sales amounts each year to millions of dollars, a sum the tenants can ill afford to lose.

With many this annual transfer is purely habit. They go from one farm to another, year after year, apparently chasing a vain hope that sooner or later they will strike a place where they can succeed with less labor than they have put into their work in the past. This moving prevents their accumulating equipment, familiarity with a particular soil and locality and capital that they need to become farm owners. To the moving tenant a farm in the next township always looks a little more attractive than the one he is now operating, but the decision that the traveler pursues in the desert. Stick-to-it-iveness is a decided asset to the tenant who will carefully cultivate that attribute, and tenants who have become prosperous farm owners give abundant testimony to this fact.

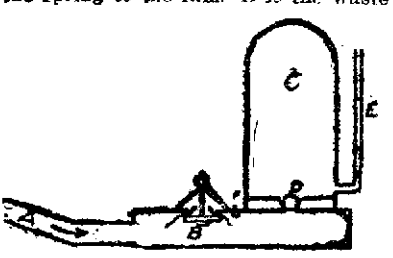

There is plenty of evidence to show that the farmer who sticks succeeds, while he who moves usually fails.—Country Gentleman.

USING A HYDRAULIC RAM.

Many Farms Possess Running Streams Which May Be Utilized.

(Prepared by Ohio Agricultural College.)
There are thousands of farms possessed of a running stream of good, clear spring water which is so far from house or barn as to be entirely useless for domestic purposes. It is possible in the majority of these cases, with a very small cash outlay, to lift this water from the spring and force it to the point where it can be used. The hydraulic ram furnishes the means. Given a spring flowing at least three gallons a minute as far as 300 to 500 feet from the house and as much as 100 feet below the level of the house, it is possible to raise a fair amount of this water and to force it in a running stream through the kitchen.

Here is a diagram of a hydraulic ram. A is the feed pipe leading from the spring to the ram. B is the waste

its action is as follows: Water rushing down the drive pipe enters the base of the ram, and since valve B is naturally in an open position, will flow out. Soon the force of this flowing water is sufficient to close the waste valve by pressure from beneath, and the water thus entrapped is forced up into the air chamber through D. The flow into C will continue until the pressure in the chamber is equal to the force of the water from below, when D will close, and there will be a sufficient backward flow to allow it to open and water will again escape through this valve. As soon as sufficient momentum is gained by the flowing water, B is again closed, and the operation is repeated. At each beat a small portion of water is forced up through the delivery pipe. The action is entirely automatic and seldom gives any trouble. F is a shifting valve through which a small amount of air is sucked at each backward beat, thus preventing the air in the air chamber from becoming waterlogged.

For Better Butter.
One of the most common causes of poor quality butter is the lack of immediate, thorough cooling of the cream after separation. The dairy division of the United States department of agriculture has made a careful investigation of conditions on a large number of dairy farms, and the data obtained show that if properly cooled cream of the best grade can be produced with but little extra labor or expense. The principles involved are very simple and are easily understood.

A liberal use of ice which has been stored in winter to be used the following summer is one of the requirements for the solution of the poor butter problem. Farmers who are already successfully delivering good products to the creamery have usually provided for themselves a convenient source of supply for the ice, suitable houses for storing the ice and ice water tanks for the immediate cooling of the milk and cream. In parts of New England, although the dairymen often hold cream on the farm four days in the summer and seven days in the winter, they deliver practically all their product while sweet. After it reaches the creamery it is pasteurized and shipped a distance of from 50 to 300 miles and may still be sold in these remote localities in the form of sweet cream.

cently completed constructions of a permanent auditorium downtown, which cost $2,000,000, inside the grounds another has been erected, and Leland Stanford University at Palo Alto and the University of California at Berkeley have thrown open their auditoriums.

Big Buildings Finished

For the past month the general public has been excluded from the exposition grounds while the last of the buildings were being finished and the exhibits were being put into place. When the gates were thrown open today, the big fair was virtually complete. All of the larger buildings were finished and in permanent shape and only a few of the smaller buildings and concessions remained to be completed.

Of the 20 foreign buildings within the grounds all were finished by Jan. 1 excepting the pavilions of France, Italy, Spain, Portugal and Panama. The French building, a reproduction of the Palace of the Legion of Honor, was the last of the foreign buildings to start construction and it will be finished in a very few days. The following is a partial record of the two years work the result of which is the big exposition of today:

Built on Sand

San Francisco won the government's support for its exposition against determined opposition to southern congressmen who wanted to center the federal appropriation on a proposed exposition in New Orleans. The work of preparing for the exposition, which had been suspended pending this decision, then went forward with renewed energy. Ground was broken Jan. 1, 1913, on a stretch of sand covered with debris and old structures. More than 70 acres were reclaimed from San Francisco Bay. Six hundred and thirty acres of sand land were converted into a veritable garden. Under the direction of the department of landscape gardening the former arid waste was made to bloom until today, when the fair opened flowers were blossoming everywhere on the grounds.

The "zone" of the exposition is to this fair what the "Midway Plaisance" was to Chicago and "The Pike" to St. Louis, having attracted amusement promoters from all parts of the United States and Europe. It was complete when it opened today.

War Does Not Affect It

When the great European war broke out last summer, it was predicted by some that the attendance of the San Francisco fair would be seriously affected. President Monroe, of the exposition company, denied this and he declared today that if the war affected the exposition at all it would be advantageously. Thousands of persons who have been in the habit of visiting Europe every spring or summer will visit San Francisco and California this fall, he believes, so that, instead of being affected the fair will really be helped. Railroad officials are preparing to accommodate tremendous crowds of tourists and local hotel men assert that their reservations during the coming months bear out the railroad's forecast.

First Big Event

The first big event of the exposition, after the opening will be the Vanderbilt cup automobile race which will be staged Monday (Feb. 22) inside the grounds. The course will be a little less than four miles long. A grandstand has been erected which will accommodate, it is estimated, 30,000 people but twice that many more can view the race from other points of advantage.

Next Saturday (Feb. 27) the Grand Prix race will be staged bringing together the foremost automobile drivers in the world.

Liberty Bell Tolls

Philadelphia, Feb. 20.—The liberty bell was rung today for the second time in three quarters of a century and telephone instruments were arranged to convey the sound to the exposition grounds at San Francisco, where the fair opened today.

Wilson Wakes Up Early

Washington, Feb. 20.—President Wilson was scheduled at 3 a. m. today to open the Panama-Pacific exposition. An alarm clock, a brand new one, had been given the chief executive so he would not over sleep.

CURWENSVILLE
Edited by G. F. Kittleberger, Jr.

The Illinois tribe of the order of Red Men of Curwensville initiated sixteen pale-faces Wednesday evening at 7:30 P. M. At 11:25 the tribe trailed from their wigwam to the Park house, where they were quickly seated to one of the best banquets the lodge ever had. After the banquet the sachem of the tribe, William S. Wise, introduced John A. Dale as toastmaster. J. Robinson, of Clearfield, responded to the toast, "Our Order," Joseph T. Bunnell, of Curwensville, "Our Tribe," A. G. Woodward, of Curwensville, "Freedom," A. R. Chase, Esq., of Clearfield, "Friendship," and Rev. Charles Peters of Glen Richey, "Charity."

Thirty Red Men trailed from Clearfield, and Grumpton and Glen Richey were well represented too. Through the efforts of the committee composed of James Edmiston, John A. Dale and William Wise, and the management of the Park house, the banquet was a success, all of the Red Men present being seated at one time.

and completely as the defendant has in its possession and under its control, the data of cost of erecting and maintaining its water plant, and the dates and amounts of dividends by it therefor declared, and, also, if so desired, permission to make a final examination of the plant and property.

The water company appealed to the supreme court from the judgment on which the mandamus was based. In affirming the lower court Judge Stewart, of the state supreme court, on January 2, 1915, said:

"The principal question raised is whether the 7th section of the act of April 23, 1874, under which the proceeding was begun, is not repealed by the act of May 31, 1907. If the latter repeals the earlier act, the present proceedings, of course must fail and the judgment be reversed. The repealing clause in the act of May 31, 1907, invalidates only such prior acts as are inconsistent with its provisions; it contains no express repeal of the earlier act of April 23, 1874, therefore the latter remains in force except as it conflicts with the earlier that both may not operate. Both have to do with the acquisition by the municipality of water works owned and operated by private interests. A very marked distinction between the two is that one, the earlier, provides for an adverse acquisition by the municipality, upon fixed terms to which the water company must submit."

Judge Stewart then quotes the seventh section of the act of 1874 as follows:

"It shall be lawful, at any time after twenty years from the introduction of water or gas, as the case may be, into any place as aforesaid, for the town, borough, city or district into which the said company shall be located, to become the owner of said works, and the property of said company by paying therefore the net cost of erecting and maintaining same, with interest thereon at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, deducting from said interest all dividends theretofore declared."

The judge says: "It was thus made a condition of the charter of such companies, evidently in view of the fact that the exclusive privileges given them, under the terms of the act, might become oppressive to the municipality, that after 20 years enjoyment of the franchise, given, they could, upon the demand of the municipality, and payment of the prescribed consideration, transfer their entire property to the latter. The act was compulsory."

"For the reasons stated the judgment is affirmed."

It will be noticed that the question of the borough of Reynoldsville's ability to purchase the water plant in that borough was not brought up by the supreme court. The court regarded this as not in any way connected with the question of the right of the borough of Reynoldsville to demand the right to examine the books and records of the company. That right has been sustained by the state supreme court, and the decision of the court affects the controversy over the proposition of the Clearfield borough council to examine the books and vouchers of the Clearfield Water company, and the company will no doubt be willing to concede this right to the borough council without further objection, if the council is still inclined to consider the municipal ownership of the water plant.

AMERICAN NAVY READY TO GUARD SEA RIGHTS

Twenty Battleships Awaiting Orders to Protect Interests of United States

TO ENFORCE RESPECT FOR OUR COMMERCE

Sinking of Neutral Ships by Torpedoes Regarded as Indicating a Dangerous Situation—While President Wilson Does Not Believe Germany Will Go to the Length of Attacking American Vessels. There is Fear in Other Quarters That the Kaiser's Submarines Will Cause Loss of American Ships or American Lives.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The United States navy is being put in readiness for action. It is an admission by the government that the situation is so grave that almost anything is now possible.

The only thing the government can do, in the opinion of the president and his cabinet, is to be prepared for any eventuality, even such as may require the use of the navy and army in order to enforce respect by Germany and every other nation for the lives and property of citizens of the United States.

Germany Wars Against Neutrals
Dispatches announcing the sinking of one neutral vessel and a French ship yesterday showed that Germany is evidently determined to make war against neutrals when found within the limits of the war zone announced by Germany, and this means that the next vessel sunk may be one belonging to the United States.

The president and his cabinet discussed the situation for several hours yesterday and the president is keeping the closest possible touch with all developments. The most significant announcement, however, is that the vessels of the navy are being put in readiness for sea operations. This was made by Secretary Daniels.

Twenty Battleships Ready.
Twenty battleships, the secretary said, are now in readiness to respond to any orders that may be given them. Others are being put in readiness and the work of preparation includes all the vessels ranging downward from the battleships to the smallest fighting and defensive craft.

While this is true, the president and members of the cabinet profess to believe that nothing will occur which farther will strain the relations between the United States and Germany.

Will Hold Nations Responsible

Mrs. Wallace was in the house with her six little children when the fire started, presumably from the chimney, and she was unable to do anything but get the children to a place of safety. She is a sister of Miss Meda Shaw, of the Progress office. Mr. Wallace is a lumber contractor. The house was owned by his wife's uncle, Fred Shaw. The total loss will be heavy.

YOUNG DUBOIS MAN SUICIDE AT RENOVO

Norman Gilnet, a citizen of DuBois, but who had gone to Renovo, where he was employed at the Pennsylvania roundhouse, committed suicide sometime Wednesday night. Gilnet, who was in ill health and who is said to have worried because a letter he expected did not arrive, is believed to have taken his life through despondency.

Wednesday evening he retired to his room in his boarding house, and that was the last seen of him alive. The letter he had been looking for arrived Thursday evening and it was taken to his room by his landlady. Receiving no answer to her knock she opened the door and saw Gilnet sitting upright in a chair, a revolver in his hand. The man was dead, having been instantly killed by the revolver shot many hours previously.

Gilnet was about 26 years of age. He had resided in DuBois some time, going to Renovo about a year ago and engaging in work at the roundhouse. He was not married and is survived by his parents and one brother.

GREATEST OF WORLD FAIRS OPENED AT SAN FRANCISCO

Vast Pageant in Which Thousands of Persons Joyously Participated

No Formal Ceremonies Marked the Beginning of the Panama-Pacific Exposition—Liberty Bell in Philadelphia Rung for Second Time in Seventy-five Years.

(By United Press)

San Francisco, Feb. 20.—President Wilson today threw his voice over 3000 miles of continuous wires and opened the Panama-Pacific exposition. Directly after opening the exposition he pressed the button at his side, which threw open the gates in Machinery Hall and started the "Fountain of Energy" which stands in front of "The Tower of Jewels." Secretary of Interior Lane is representing the president at the exposition.

Before the exposition was opened guns were fired and a great parade passed through the streets and avenues. The Japanese and Chinese had over 1000 in that part of the parade reserved for "representatives of other nations."

The Panama-Pacific International exposition represents an expenditure of $50,000,000. The critical judgment of experts pronounced its eleven main exhibit buildings, its five courts, 250 pieces of statuary, mural paintings and lighting effects one of the most magnificent ensembles of buildings and grounds ever achieved.

An enormous part of the outlay is represented in the "zone," the amusement street of the fair.

The exhibit palaces include a total area of 2,653,183 square feet. Sixty thousand exhibitors will fill this space, the promoters of the fair declaring that the exhibits will cover the arts, industries and resources of the entire world and summarize the achievements of human history.

Many Special Events
Not only will the exposition be remarkable in its exhibits showing, but in its special events, conferences and conventions, spectacles and pageants. The department of congress has listed between 400 and 500 national and international organizations which will hold their meetings or conventions here. It is estimated that an average of 100 conventions will be held every day during the life of the exposition which will last until December 4.

To house these meetings the city and exposition management have re-

COUNTY CANDIDATES COMING TO FRONT

There is no dearth of patriots willing to serve their county in the fat offices which are to be filled by the voters next fall in Clearfield county. Already a number of candidates have notified their friends that they intend to "run for office," while the air is full of rumors of other citizens who are keeping their ears to the ground in order that they may not miss the call of the voters.

Unless the present legislature changes the date of the primary elections to an earlier day the voters will in September nominate candidates for all but two county officials—sheriff and district attorney. The county offices to be filled are the following: County commissioner, prothonotary, register and recorder and county treasurer. Thus far the following have signified their intention of competing for the nomination:

County Commissioner—Republican—Samuel Hamilton, Hugh Kline, T. R. Weimer, Jesse A. Dale, H. H. Spencer, W. T. DeHaas, D. D. Miller, L. M. Impson, George R. McClellan.

Democrats—M. L. Farrell, Kinsey Sloppy, H. L. Bowman.

Prothonotary—Republicans—John H. Moore, Milford Bratton, John E. Johnson.

Register and Recorder—Republicans—Toney Evans, W. E. Paterson, Ed Chase.

Democrat—Richard M. Reed.

County Treasurer—Republicans—Al Kline, H. L. Jones, Amos H. Rumberger.

Democrats—Austin H. Haney, Ed Shirey.

There may be other aspirants for these offices who will be smoked out later, and the list is certain to be big enough to make the race for the nomination a lively one.

German Reports Fighting Are Flatly Contradicted

(By United Press)

Paris, Feb. 20.—By Henry W. Wood.—Flat contradiction of German gains in the north are being issued by the war officers in the Champagne and Argonne regions. Their reports state that everywhere the advantage has been with the allies. War officials say that Germany had made these reports deliberately in the hope of influencing the Italian parliament, which is now in session, to remain neutral.

Rang the Bell and Startled the Pupils

When the schools in the Market street building were preparing for dismissal at noon Friday the pupils and teachers were startled to hear the school bell ring an alarm of fire. There was some little excitement, but by playing the piano and otherwise soothing the children all of them got out of the building safely and were marched a short distance down the street.

It was at first thought that a real fire had broken out in the building and that the janitor had sounded the alarm, but subsequent investigation proved that a lad had performed that act in a spirit of fun. The boy passed a bad quarter of an hour with the principal, and it is likely that neither he nor any other boy in the building will indulge in such a joke for some time to come. Fortunately, most of the pupils believed that the signal was that usually sounded when a fire drill is given.

At last the day for awarding the $50.00 in added cash prizes in the Progress' popular voting contest is here and at 10 o'clock tonight the vote count to determine the happy winners will be started. This time has been anxiously looked forward to by all of the ambitious voters and all of the ladies have been making elaborate preparations for the tremendous rush of voting that will come tonight.

Within the few short hours that remain will be deposited and counted the votes that will name the winners of the $25.00, $15.00 and $10.00 cash prizes that were added to the prize list two weeks ago. Just who will make the best showing, lead the field and carry off the first prize is a matter of much interest and absolute uncertainty. The voting from all quarters has been very heavy throughout the day and this evening is sure to produce the greatest rush of voting thus far experienced in the contest. There will be many surprises and the lady who can spring the biggest surprise is going to get that $25.00 in cash.

The voting and subscription getting efforts of all contestants for the past several days has been strenuous and it looks as if all the ladies are bent on the same purpose of winning the first cash prize. Up until the paper went to press this afternoon, clipped coupons and subscriptions had been literally pouring in from all sections of the contest territory and all contestants seem to have far surpassed their former vote getting records. Many extension and long term subscriptions are noted among the business of all candidates and the battle at the closing hour tonight is sure to be a lively one.

RIGHT OF BOROUGH TO ACQUIRE PLANTS IS ESTABLISHED

Supreme Court Decision of Interest to Clearfield Borough Council

John M. Urey, borough solicitor, has called the attention of the Progress to the issue of the advanced reports of cases decided by the Pennsylvania supreme court. The case of the borough of Reynoldsville vs. the Reynoldsville Water company is reported in this pamphlet.

The borough of Reynoldsville, by resolution of the borough council in 1913, signified its desire to become the owner of the Reynoldsville water works, and a request was made upon the water company that the borough be permitted to examine the books of the water company in order that the borough might ascertain the cost of erecting and maintaining the company's plant. This permission was refused and the borough of Reynoldsville applied to the Jefferson county common pleas court for a writ of mandamus to compel the water company to allow the examination of its books and records, which writ was granted by the court.

The mandamus commanded the water company to "give to the borough, its officers and agents, access to its books and papers showing as fully

The cause of the sinking is not yet known. The ship was taken by all vessels between the Norwegian and English coasts and was undoubtedly intended for the Germans. The fact that the ship was carrying 100 passengers and crew is a serious matter. SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1915

Good evening! What part are you taking in the work of upbuilding Clearfield?

If you go abroad this summer, be sure to take your aeroplane umbrella with you.

If you are bothered by a spring poet, shoot him on the spot or any other part of his anatomy.

President Wilson's shipping bill has been laid on the shelf, and the president will follow the bill later.

Don't get excited until a German submarine attacks an American vessel, then prepare to march upon Berks county.

Many persons condemn Billy Sunday for his sensationalism because they do not want to be reminded of their sins.

Possibly Russia is playing a strong strategic card in permitting Germany to capture and feed some of the czar's surplus soldiers.

If George Washington were living today it would be difficult for him to run as a candidate for the presidency and be unable to tell a lie.

Germany might save more food for her own people, if she were to release the half million prisoners she claims to have captured since the war began.

Germany short of food? What has become of the large stocks of provisions which that country is said to have had on hand, sufficient to last the people for years?

What this state wants are game laws for the benefit of the legitimate hunters, not in the interest of the pot hunters and game hogs who are back of the Kalbfus bills.

Clearfield merchants who realize that an advertisement in the Progress is read by more prospective customers than is any other daily newspaper in Clearfield county.

Trouble is, the young men who loaf on the sidewalk to the discommoding women never read the newspapers and do not know what nice things are being said about them.

And at that, Germany is right in declaring that England would resort to drastic tactics if she were placed in the same position as that in which the fatherland finds itself.

The slowness in which federal offices are being filled may be explained on the supposition that Mr. Bryan cannot find "deserving Democrats" in sufficient numbers to fill the places.

Texas proposes to enact a law prohibiting the carrying of deadly weapons to church, and it is not made plain whether this bill is aimed at the toughs or at women who wear big hats.

People who are advising the Belgians to leave their own country and settle elsewhere never stop to think that the Belgians might want to remain in their own country because they love it.

Word comes from Amsterdam to the effect that Germany is now fighting "without regard to consequences." Well, what else has Germany been doing ever since she started in to destroy Belgium? She certainly has had no regard or consequences to other people.

Bryan, Hobson & Co., who are trying to get up a war with Japan, might find themselves incapacitated by age or mental disabilities if hostilities between the United States and Japan were to start.

New Yorkers want Sunday baseball, but the saloon keepers oppose this, claiming it would injure their Sunday business. We thought all saloons were prohibited by law from opening on the Sabbath day in Gotham.

A cigarette dropped in a pool room set fire to a hotel in Ebensburg and a quarter of a million dollars worth of property was destroyed. The fellow who dropped the cigarette lives to repeat the trick in some other hotel.

The Panama-Pacific exposition was formally opened today, and the biggest fair the world has ever seen will last until December. Many eastern people would like to attend the fair, but the fare is just a little too steep for them.

New York is the only large city in the United States bearing the same name as the state in which it is located, but there are many towns in counties of the same name which will some day be just as important as New York is, relatively.

STARVING OUT GERMANY

Great Britain is fully justified in preventing foodstuffs from reaching Germany, if this can be done, and Germany is equally justified in endeavoring to procure the foodstuffs. But neither nation has a right to endanger the lives of neutral people or to interfere with the legitimate traffic of these countries, unless the latter are discovered to be supplying food to one or the other belligerent. Germany proposes to attack with submarine boats all ships carrying food or armament to England, while England seeks to protect her own merchant vessels from German attack by flying on them the flags of neutral countries.

The United States has been forced to demand of Germany that she take especial pains to see that the German submarines do not attack American ships. The German government—which is the kaiser—has replied that if the American ships sail within the war zone defined by the kaiser they must run risks similar to those encountered by English ships. This condition of affairs is very annoying to the American government, for if a German submarine were to attack an American ship and sink her, thus causing the death of Americans, the government of the United States would be compelled to regard the action as an unfriendly one.

On the other hand, England has been admonished not to use the American flag for the purpose of deceiving the Germans. Germany has declared that this attempt to deceive her has made it incumbent upon her to regard all ships entering the war zone as being in the service of England and that under the circumstances it would be the safest plan for the American ships to keep away from the danger zone. There is no doubt that the action of England in using the American flag to protect her own vessels has increased the perils of American vessels, and the English course must be condemned as being without regard for the welfare of American shipping.

That Germany is fighting for her self-preservation is apparent, and that she will continue to fight "regardless of consequences" no one doubts. Her people are demanding food, which they cannot get because of the British blockade. To injure England and prevent food ships from reaching London the kaiser is prepared to go to any lengths. Already two Norwegian ships have been sunk by mines and torpedoes and the vessels of other neutral nations will not be respected by Germany. If, however, the kaiser continues to destroy neutral ships he will bring about what he would be supposed to wish to prevent—the joining in the war of the neutral states, all of whom would unite with the allies in crushing Germany.

A DOUBTFUL REPORT

The news service which furnishes the Progress with its daily report of the happenings of the world is regarded as one of the most reliable associations in the United States. We believe this new service is in the main accurate; at least the Progress has heretofore found the news it sends out trustworthy, and we would regret to learn that our confidence in the reliability of the association had been misplaced.

The reports of the war in Europe, of the doings in congress, of accidents and crimes and of nearly all other happenings of public interest which have been transmitted to the Progress through the United Press have been entirely satisfactory so far as accuracy is concerned. Yesterday, however, this paper received a dispatch from Chicago which, although we printed it, because we have faith in the honesty of the news service, has caused us some perturbation since we saw the item in print.

In the hurry of gathering news from all quarters of the globe press associations are to be excused if, occasionally during the year they fail to verify their news. The item in question was so unusual that it at once struck us that somebody was trying to play a joke on the United Press. It was, therefore, only because of our strong faith and reliance in the integrity of the United Press that the Progress allowed the statement to find a place in these columns that out in Chicago thieves had robbed a newspaper office, getting away with one thousand dollars. If this report is true, then Chicago newspaper offices must be different from those in other parts of the country. But think of an editor having one thousand dollars all in one lump!

Text of German Note To American Warning

Berlin, Feb. 20.—The imperial government has examined the communication from the United States government in the same spirit of good will and friendship by which the communication appears to have been dictated. The imperial government is in accord with the United States government that for both parties it is in a high degree desirable to avoid misunderstandings which might arise from the occurrence of incidents which might trouble the friendly relations which so far happily exist between the two governments.

With regard to the assuring of these friendly relations, the German government believes that it may all the more reckon on a full understanding with the United States, as the procedure announced by the German admiralty, which was fully explained in the note of the 4th inst., is in no way directed against legitimate commerce and legitimate shipping of neutrals, but represents solely a measure of self-defense, imposed on Germany by her vital interests, against England's method of warfare, which is contrary to international law and which so far no protest by neutrals has succeeded in bringing back to the generally recognized principles of law as existing before the outbreak of war.

In order to exclude all doubt regarding these cardinal points, the German government once more begs leave to state how things stand. Until now Germany has scrupulously observed valid international rules regarding naval warfare. At the very beginning of the war Germany immediately agreed to the proposal of the American government to ratify the new Declaration of London, and took over its contents unaltered and without formal obligation, into her prize law.

Obeded Sea Rules

The German government has obeyed these rules even when they were diametrically opposed to her military interests. For instance, Germany allowed the transportation of provisions to England from Denmark until today, though she was well able, by her sea forces, to prevent it. In contradistinction to this attitude, England has not even hesitated at a second infringement of international law if by such means she could paralyze the peaceful commerce of Germany with neutrals. The German government will be the less obligated to enter into details as these are put down sufficiently, though not exhaustively, in the American note to the British government dated December 29 as a result of five months' experience.

All these encroachments have been made, as has been admitted, in order to cut off all supplies from Germany and thereby starve her peaceful civil population—a procedure contrary to all humanitarian principles. Neutrals have been unable to prevent the interruption of their commerce with Germany, which is contrary to international laws.

The American government, as Germany readily acknowledges, has protested against the British procedure. In spite of these protests and protests from other neutral states, Great Britain could not be induced to depart from the course of action she had decided upon.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTH CELEBRATED IN PHILLY

(By United Press)

Philadelphia, Feb. 20.—Practically every patriot and fraternal society here participated in the monster parade and celebration today commemorating the birthday of George Washington. The parade terminated at Independence Square where exercises were held in which local school children sang patriotic songs and addresses were made by prominent citizens.

The celebration was held today instead of Monday in order that members of the various societies would be able to turn out in full forces.

Dartmouth vs. Brown

(By United Press)

Providence, R. I., Feb. 20.—Dartmouth and Brown resumed athletic relations today after eight years lapse. The break resulted from a ball game in 1907. Today's event was a dual meet.

Get Jelke's Gilt Edged Butterine at the Workmen's store.

cided upon. Thus, for instance, the American ship Wilhelmina recently was stopped by the British, although her cargo was destined solely for the German civil population, and according to the express declaration of the German government was to be employed only for this purpose.

Cut Off From Supplies
Germany is as good as cut off from her overseas supply by the silent or protesting toleration of neutrals, not only in regard to such goods as are absolutely contraband, but also in regard to such as, according to acknowledged law before the war, are only conditional contraband or not contraband at all. Great Britain, on the other hand, with the toleration of neutral governments not only supplied with such goods as are not contraband or only conditional contraband, but with goods which are regarded by Great Britain, if sent to Germany, as absolute contraband; namely provisions, industrial raw materials, etc., and even with goods which have always indubitably been regarded as absolute contraband.

The German government feels itself obliged to point out with the greatest emphasis that a traffic in arms, estimated at many hundreds of millions, is being carried on between American firms and Germany's enemies. Germany fully comprehends that the practice of right and the toleration of wrong on the part of neutrals are matters absolutely at the discretion of neutrals, and involve no formal violation of neutrality. Germany, therefore, did not complain of any formal violation of neutrality, but the German government, in view of complete evidence before it, cannot help pointing out that it, together with the entire public opinion of Germany, feels itself to be severely prejudiced by the fact that neutrals, in safeguarding their rights in legitimate commerce with Germany, according to international law, have to the present achieved no, or only insignificant, results while they are making unlimited use of their right by carrying on contraband trade with Great Britain and our other enemies.

Must Retaliate
If it is a formal right of neutrals to take no steps to protect their legitimate trade with Germany and even to allow themselves to be influenced in the direction of the conscious and willful restriction of their trade, on the other hand they have the perfect right, which they unfortunately do not exercise, to cease contraband trade, especially in arms, with Germany's enemies.

In view of this situation, Germany, after six months of patient waiting, sees herself obliged to answer Great Britain's submarine method of naval warfare with sharp countermeasures. If Great Britain in her fight against Germany summons hunger as an ally for the purpose of imposing upon a civilized people of 70,000,000 the choice between starvation and starvation or submission to Great Britain's commercial will, then Germany today is determined to take up the gauntlet and appeal to similar allies.

WOULD TAX BACHELORS AND EXTERMINATE CATS

Trenton, Feb. 20.—Bachelors and cats will stand in jeopardy if two bills pending in the present legislature should receive favorable action by the senate. The former will be affected in a financial way, and the felines face extinction as a species in very short order if the measures are placed upon the statute books of New Jersey.

Assemblyman Ostrum, Democrat, introduced the bachelor bill, which provides that all unmarried males over 30 years shall pay an annual tax of $50 provided however, that they are earning at least $50 a week.

As Republican, O. H. Hammond, is responsible for the contemplated war on the cats.

He has put in a bill which calls for licensing at a $1 a head. The sponsor of the proposed law wants to eliminate the hundreds of stray animals that prey upon young game such as rabbits and birds.

Assemblyman Singer would establish a state board of barbers to regulate that trade, legalize boxing in this state, and permit the playing of baseball on Sundays through bills he has introduced. Senator Egan would also legalize all sports on Sundays.

Senator Hutchinson, of Mercer, would abolish the death penalty as capital punishment, and substitute life imprisonment at hard labor.

Among the other interesting propositions before the present legislature are the bills to compel the reading of the Bible in the public schools; permitting the hunting of deer with dogs; reimbursing convicts for state road work at the rate of 50 cents a day; the money to be given to dependent wives and minor children and increase the bill to compensation to workmen for the loss of a thumb or hand incurred while engaged at work.

SUPERB VIEW OF THE AVENUE OF PALMS

Vast City, Extending Two and a Half Miles Along Shores of San Francisco Bay, Presents Scene of Unparalleled Brilliance and Interest.

Forty-two Foreign Nations and Forty-three States Are Officially Represented by Exhibits at Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Two Hundred and Fifty Buildings in All and Sixty Thousand Individual Exhibitors Combine to Present Grandest Epitome of World's Progress Ever Celebrated.

TO give an adequate word picture of the mighty Panama-Pacific International Exposition is almost impossible, particularly when one comes to a consideration of the color scheme and the indirect lighting system by which neither are nor incandescent is present to affront the eye. And yet, approaching the Exposition either from the bay of San Francisco or from over the hills on any of the car lines that travel to its gates, these are the first features that thrill with wonder and anticipation.

Like a Dream City.

Looking down on the hundreds of acres of gleaming domes and lofty spires, mammoth arches and extended colonnades, lawns and flowers, noble palms and forestation, with the kaleidoscope of colors blending over all, the vision is one to recall some dream city. Looking down on this same vision by night, with the subdued effulgence of millions of concealed lights investing the whole with an incomparable radiance, one in very truth seems to view the realization of a glorious dream. Two miles and a half in length and a half a mile in width, this spread of beauty curves in a demilune in a sheltered hollow along the shores of San Francisco bay. The heights of San Francisco are back of it, the bay before, and across the bay the Marin hills, with Mount Tamalpais, the majestic, rising in grandeur. This is the great panorama that frames the Exposition, situate just inside the Golden Gate.

This $50,000,000 Exposition is built to a general ground plan, the plot being laid out by Edward F. Bennett, the noted city planner of New York. From the main group of eight exhibit palaces, covering eighty-five acres, to the remotest picture postcard booth on the amusement zone each of the 250 structures of the Exposition has a relation to each other and to the boulevards in the general plan.

Grand Radiating Center.

The grand radiating center of the Exposition is the Court of the Universe, a vast open way and 500 feet wide, located in the center of the unit formed by eight of the eleven main exhibit palaces. Entrance to this court is by the tower gate, the great arch beneath the Tower of Jewels, the highest tower on the grounds, rising 435 feet in scintillating grandeur.

The Tower of Jewels is directly opposite the Scott street or main entrance gates to the Exposition, the South Gardens, 500 feet across, extending from the entry gates to the tower and along the frontages of the four palaces of the main group, which faces south.

Dominating the east side of the gardens is the great Festival Hall, suggested by the Theatre des Beaux Arts type of French architecture. In this hall is the greatest pipe organ in the world. Here will be held the musical, literary and dramatic features, and the congresses of the world—400 in all will meet at the Exposition—will hold their sessions. Particular attention has been paid to the acoustic properties so that each person in the 3,000 seats of the auditorium is assured of hearing distinctly everything from the stage.

Mighty Palace of Horticulture.

Nine hundred feet across the South Gardens, on the west end, is the mighty Palace of Horticulture, its great dome of glass, 152 feet in diameter, being a reproduction of the dome on the mosque of Ahmed I. at Constantinople. Here will be assembled what experts have declared to be the most complete exhibit of horticultural products ever gathered under one roof in the world.

The Palace of Horticulture cost $341,000.

The four exhibit palaces fronting the South Gardens are, in the order they appear as they face them from the gardens, the Palace of Varied Industries to the extreme right, next the Palace of Manufactures, Tower of Jewels, Palace of Liberal Arts and Palace of Education. The four palaces that complete this group face San Francisco bay. They are the Palaces of Mines and Metallurgy, Transportation, Food Products and Agriculture.

These eight structures are bounded by four great boulevards, the Avenue of Palms on the south, the Avenue of Progress on the east, the Esplanade on the bay shore and the Avenue of Administration on the west.

Facing this group from the east, across the Avenue of Progress, is the Palace of Machinery, the largest frame building under one roof in the world, 987 feet long by 267 feet in width and costing $659,665. Here will be assembled everything in the world of machinery. A better idea of the dimensions of the behemoth of buildings than figures convey may be gained when the fact is recalled that Lincoln Beachey made an exhibition flight with his aeroplane inside the building.

Four carloads of nails were used in its construction and 1,500 tons of nuts, bolts and washers.

Palace of Fine Arts.

Facing the main group of palaces from the west and across the Avenue of Administration and the Fine Arts Lagoon is the Palace of Fine Arts, curving around the lagoon one-fifth of a mile in length. This building is of steel and concrete, thoroughly fireproofed in order to protect the masterpieces of the world's art which will be on exhibition. The lagoon is one of the beautiful features of the outdoor decoration scheme. Thousands of birds, both wild fowl and tame, are already making it their home, while graceful swans and birds of plumage will glide over its limpid surface or preen in the flowers, shrubs and trees of its shores.

The Palace of Fine Arts cost $580,000. The Fine Arts Palace, Machinery Palace and the Horticultural Palace comprise, with the eight other exhibit palaces and Festival Hall, the main architectural grouping of the central area of the Exposition grounds.

The dimensions of the buildings of the unit of eight are:

Palace of Varied Industries, 414 feet by 541 feet long, floor area 219,000 square feet, height 97 feet, cost $312,691.

Palace of Education, 394 feet by 525

The facade extending toward the bay is that of the Palace of Food Products.

2.—The marvelous effects in the night illuminations can be appreciated from this picture taken of the Greco-American colonnade of the Palace of Fine Arts. Facing the limpid waters of the Fine Arts Lagoon, the bases of these mighty columns boded in the foliage that fringes its shores, the effect by night is a vision of beauty long to linger in the memory. The north and south wings of this colonnade extend 1,100 feet along the Fine Arts Lagoon.

3.—The great triumphal arch, the Arch of the Rising Sun, surmounted by a symbolical sculptured group, "The Nations of the East." The howdah upon the elephant rises 185 feet above the floors of the Court of the Universe.

4.—Among the rare exhibits in the Exposition's continuous live stock show are these long tailed Japanese chickens, which are bred especially for the emperor of Japan and whose valuation runs to as high as $2,000 for a single bird. These chickens are housed in glass, this precaution being necessary to preserve the fine quality and sheen of their wonderful feathers.

5.—On the left in this view of the Avenue of Palms is the stupendous Tower of Jewels, 435 feet high, or as high as the average thirty-five story building, symbolizing the world. The tower is adorned with 125,000 cut glass prisms that tremble with the wind. At night they scintillate with all the colors of the rainbow as flashlights play upon them. On the right is seen the imposing doorway of the Palace of Liberal Arts, after the famous portal of the Santa Cruz hospice at Toledo, Spain.

It celebrates the completion of the Panama canal.
It is the first world's exposition in color.
It covers 635 acres, with all main exhibit palaces closely connected.
It has forty-seven miles of exhibit aisles in the eleven main exhibit palaces.
It is twenty minutes' ride from the heart of the downtown district of San Francisco.
It enjoys unexampled transportation inducements.
It contains the largest frame building under one roof in the world today, Machinery Hall, 987 by 268 feet.
It will be the mecca for over 400 conventions during the year.
It established a record in exposition history by being ready in advance of the opening day.

tion will present the best that has been produced during the past decade by creative minds.
The exhibit palaces comprise the main or central group of buildings. The west group is composed of the pavilions of the foreign nations, of the states and the live stock section. The east group is the amusement zone, where 100 amusements are located who were selected out of 1,000 applicants for space.
An Epitome of Progress.
The Exposition is in every sense a contemporary. It is the only one to be considered for an award by the International Jury of Award that has not been produced since the 1889 Exposition. It therefore is an epitome of the progress of the world during the last decade—a decade which accomplished more for material advancement than all the decades of the century just as the last century produced greater achievements than all of the centuries preceding it.

O'Connell Visits Angela.

NATHANIEL KINGSNORTH stayed only long enough in Ireland to permit of Angela's recovery. He went into the sick-room only once. When Angela saw him she turned her back on him and refused to speak to him.

For a moment a flush of pity for his young sister gave him a pang at his heart. She looked so frail and worn, so desperately ill. After all, she was his sister, and, again, had she not been punished? He was willing to forget the foolish things she had done and the bitter things she had said.

Let bygones be bygones. He realized that he had neglected her. He would do so no longer. Far from it. When they returned to London all that would be remedied. He would take care of her in every possible way. He felt a genuine thrill course through him as he thought of his generosity.

To all of this Angela made no answer. Stung by her silence, he left the room and sent for his other sister. When Monica came he told her that whenever Angela wished to recognize his magnanimity she could send for him. She would not find him unforgetting.

To this Angela sent no reply. When the fever had passed and she was stronger arrangements were made for the journey to London.

As Angela walked unsteadily to the carriage, leaning on the arm of the nurse, Nathaniel came forward to assist her. She passed him without a word. Nor did she speak to him once nor answer any remark of his during the long journey on the train.

When they reached London she refused to go to the Kingsnorth house, where her brother lived, but went at once to a distant cousin of her mother's, Mrs. Wrexford, and made her home with her, as she had often done before. She refused to hold any further communication with her brother, despite the ministrations of her sister, Monica, and Mrs. Wrexford.

Mrs. Wrexford was a gentle little white capped widow, whose only happiness in life seemed to be in worrying over others' misfortunes. She was on the board of various charitable organizations and was a busy helper in the field of mercy. She worshiped Angela, as she had her mother before her. That something serious had occurred between Angela and her brother Mrs. Wrexford realized, but she could find out nothing by questioning Angela. Every time she asked her anything relative to her attitude Angela was silent.

One day she begged Mrs. Wrexford never to speak of her brother again. Mrs. Wrexford respected her wishes and watched her and nursed her through her convalescence with a tender solicitude.

When O'Connell's letter came Angela showed it to Mrs. Wrexford, together with her reply.

"Do you mind if I see him here?" Angela asked.

"What kind of man is he?"

"The kind that heroes are made of."

"He writes so strangely—may one say unreservedly? Is he a gentleman?"

"In the real meaning of the word—yes."

"Of good family?"

"Not as we estimate goodness. His family were just simple peasants."

"Do you think it wise to see him?"

"I don't consider the wisdom. I only listen to my heart."

"You—love him?"

"So much of love as I can give is his."

"Oh, my dear!" cried Mrs. Wrexford, thoroughly alarmed.

"Don't be afraid," said Angela quietly. "Our ways lie wide apart. He is working for the biggest thing in life. His work is his life. I am nothing."

"But don't you think it would be indiscreet, dear, to have such a man come here?"

"Why indiscreet?"

"A man who has been in prison!"

and Mrs. Wrexford shuddered at the thought. She had seen and helped so many poor victims of the cruel laws, and the memory of their drawn faces and evil eyes and coarse speech flashed across her mind. She could not recall one coming into her little home.

Angela answered her:

"Yes, he has been in prison, but the shame was his persecutors, not for him. Still, if you would rather I saw him somewhere else—"

"Oh, no, my dear child. If you wish it—"

"I do. I just want to see him again, as he writes he does me. I want to hear him speak again. I want to wish him Godspeed on his journey."

"Very well, Angela," said the old lady. "As you wish."

A week afterward O'Connell arrived in London. They met in Mrs. Wrexford's little drawing room in New Inn.

They looked at each other for some moments without speaking. Both noted the fresh lines of suffering in each other's face. They had been through the long valley of the shadow of sorrow since they had last met.

But O'Connell thought as he looked at her that all the suffering he had gone through passed from him as some idle dream. It was worth it—these months of torture—just to be looking at her now; worth the long black nights, the labors in the heat of the day with life's outcasts around him, the taunts of his bitterest north-

I am a little weak—a little tired. That will pass too."

"If anything had happened to you—or ever should happen!" He buried his face in his hands and moaned:

"Oh, my God! Oh, my God!"

His body shook with the sobs he tried vainly to check. Angela put her hand gently on his shoulder.

"Don't do that," she whispered. He controlled himself with an effort. "It will be over in a moment. Just a moment. I am sorry."

He suddenly knelt at her feet, his head bowed in reverence. "God help me!" he cried faintly. "I love you, I love you!"

She looked down at him, her face transfigured.

He loved her!

The beat of her heart spoke it. "He loves you!" The throbbing of her brain shouted it. "He loves you!" The cry of her soul whispered it. "He loves you!"

She stretched out her hands to him: "My love is yours, just as yours is mine. Let us join our lives and give them to the suffering and the oppressed."

He looked up at her in wonder. "I don't. Think what I am!"

"You are the best that is in me. We are mates."

"A peasant! A beggar!"

"You are the noblest of the noble."

"A convict."

"Our Saviour was crucified so that his people should be redeemed. You have given the pain of your body so that your people may be free."

"It wouldn't be fair to you," he pleaded.

"If you leave me it will be unfair to us both."

"Oh, my dear one! My dear one!" He folded her in his arms.

"I'll give the best of my days to guard you and protect you and bring you happiness."

"I am happy now," and her voice died to a whisper.

Three days afterward Nathaniel Kingsnorth returned late at night from a political banquet.

It had been a great evening. At last it seemed that life was about to give him what he most wished for. His dearest ambitions were, apparently, about to be realized.

He had been called on as a staunch Conservative and his quota to the already wonderful array of brilliant perorations of seasoned statesmen and admirable speakers. Kingsnorth had excelled himself. Never had he spoken so powerfully. Being one of the only men at the banquet who had enjoyed even a brief glimpse of Ireland, he made the solution of the Irish question the main topic of his speech. Speaking incisively and earnestly, he placed before them his panacea for Irish ills. His hearers were enthralled. When he sat down the cheering was prolonged.

When he left the gathering he was in a condition of ecstasy. Lying back amid the cushions during his long drive home, he closed his eyes and pictured the future. His imagination ran riot. It took wings and flew from height to height. He saw himself the leader of a party—"the Kingsnorth party"—controlling his followers with a band of iron and driving them to vote according to his judgment and his desire.

By the time he had reached home he had entered the cabinet and was being spoken of as the probable prime minister.

He poured out a liquor and stood sipping it as he turned over the letters brought by the night's post. One arrested him. It had been delivered by hand and was marked "Most Urgent." As he read the letter every vestige of color left his face.

WHEN REED RULED

Johnstown Wasn't In It

By "Bud" Fisher

And Raised a Row in Congress by Counting a Quorum.

NOW THE QUESTION AROSE.

The Issue That Moved the "Czar" to Overturn Both Democratic and Republican Precedents and Put the House in an Uproar.

In his "Life of Thomas Brackett Reed," popularly known as "Czar" Reed, Samuel W. McCall relates how the great question of the quorum was counted arose. The famous issue came up shortly after Reed's reelection as speaker in December, 1890. The Republicans had so narrow a majority that business would have been difficult even without the filibustering of the opposition.

On Jan. 20, 1890, Dalzell reported from the committee on elections an award of a contested seat to a Republican.

"Crisp raised the question of consideration, and only 163 members responded, or two less than a quorum. Not merely was it beyond the power of the Republicans to produce a quorum at that time, but it appeared equally certain that they would not be able to produce one at any time during that Congress.

"Reed had carefully planned to meet the emergency which had long seemed to him inevitable and had determined upon his course. But the element of doubt was whether his party associates in the house would sanction the radical course which he meditated. He was intending to overturn not merely Democratic precedents, but Republican precedents as well.

"Times almost without number the leaders of his own party had maintained that the constitutional quorum was to be determined by the roll call and not by the bodily presence of members. The position had never seriously been questioned that if a majority of the representatives failed to answer to their names on the calling of the roll there was no quorum present for the transaction of business, even if every member might actually be present in the hall of the house.

"Instead of ordering the roll to be called again Reed calmly said, 'The chair directs the clerk to record the names of the following members present and refusing to vote.' He then proceeded to name a number of Democrats and among them Carlisle and other Democratic leaders who were present when their names were called and who refrained from voting.

"At once the house was in an uproar. There was an explosion as violent as was ever witnessed in a legislative body. The speaker's recital of the names was interrupted by passionate remonstrance. His course was denounced as revolutionary. For a considerable time the tumult stopped the business of the house. Reed remained unmoved, and when the noise would for a moment subside he would add to his count of Democrats present and not voting.

"One member of much dignity, but not conspicuous for sense of humor, gravely arose with a book in his hand and said, 'I deny your right, Mr. Speaker, to count me as present, and I desire to read from the parliamentary law on that subject.' Reed raised a hearty laugh by coolly saying in reply and with his customary drawl: 'The chair is making a statement of fact that the gentleman from Kentucky is present. Does he deny it?'

"After the noise had subsided sufficiently for the speaker to make a connected statement he proceeded to state the question to the house: 'The chair treats this subject in orderly fashion and will submit his opinion to the house, which, if not acquiesced in by the house, can be overruled on an appeal taken from the decision.'

"He then proceeded to state his opinion in a few words. Referring to the constitutional power of the house to compel the attendance of absent members, he said: 'If members can be present and refuse to exercise their function—to wit, not be counted as a quorum—that provision would seem to be entirely nugatory. Inasmuch as the constitution only provides for their attendance, that attendance is enough. If more was needed the constitution would have provided for more.'

"Disorder was renewed, but after a hot debate the ruling was sustained. Reed's party standing by him to a man, and the supreme court subsequently confirmed the point.

Art of Throwing Kisses.

"Young men of this country do not know how to throw a kiss gracefully," said a college professor. "It takes a young Mexican to perform the act gracefully."

THE ANNUAL MOVING HABIT.

Already in local newspapers are appearing announcements of the thousands of farm sales that occur each year as tenants make their annual or biennial shifts. If the facts were known it would probably be realized that the cost in shrinkage of values brought about by such sales amounts each year to millions of dollars, a sum the tenants can ill afford to lose.

With many this annual transfer is purely habit. They go from one farm to another, year after year, apparently chasing a vain hope that sooner or later they will strike a place where they can succeed with less labor than they have put into their work in the past. This moving prevents their accumulating equipment, familiarity with a particular soil and locality and capital that they need to become farm owners. To the moving tenant a farm in the next township always looks a little more attractive than the one he is now operating, but the decision is just as positive as the mirage that the traveler pursues in the desert. Stick-to-it-iveness is a decided asset to the tenant who will carefully cultivate that attribute, and tenants who have become prosperous farm owners give abundant testimony to this fact.

There is plenty of evidence to show that the farmer who sticks succeeds, while he who moves usually fails.—Country Gentleman.

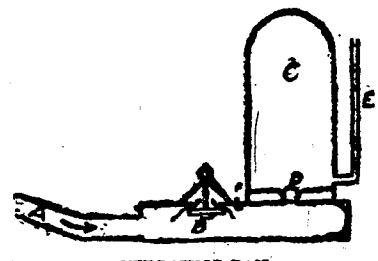

USING A HYDRAULIC RAM.

Many Farms Possess Running Streams Which May Be Utilized.

(Prepared by Ohio Agricultural college.)

There are thousands of farms possessed of a running stream of good, clear spring water which is so far from house or barn as to be entirely useless for domestic purposes. It is possible in the majority of these cases, with a very small cash outlay, to lift this water from the spring and force it to the point where it can be used. The hydraulic ram furnishes the means. Given a spring flowing at least three gallons a minute as far as 300 to 500 feet from the house and as much as 100 feet below the level of the house, it is possible to raise a fair amount of this water and to force it in a running stream through the kitchen.

Here is a diagram of a hydraulic ram. A is the feed pipe leading from the spring to the ram. B is the waste is action is as follows: Water rushing down the drive pipe enters the base of the ram, and since valve B is naturally in an open position, will flow out. Soon the force of this flowing water is sufficient to close the waste valve by pressure from beneath, and the water thus entrapped is forced up into the air chamber through D. The flow into C will continue until the pressure in the chamber is equal to the force of the water from below, when D will close, and there will be a sufficient backward flow to allow B to open and water will again escape through this valve. As soon as sufficient momentum is gained by the flowing water, B is again closed, and the operation is repeated. At each beat a small portion of water is forced up through the delivery pipe. The action is entirely automatic and seldom gives one trouble. F is a shifting valve through which a small amount of air is sucked at each backward beat, thus preventing the air in the air chamber from becoming waterlogged.

For Better Butter.

One of the most common causes of poor quality butter is the lack of immediate, thorough cooling of the cream after separation. The dairy division of the United States department of agriculture has made a careful investigation of conditions on a large number of dairy farms, and the data obtained show that if properly cooled cream of the best grade can be produced with but little extra labor or expense. The principles involved are very simple and are easily understood.

A liberal use of ice which has been stored in winter to be used the following summer is one of the requirements for the solution of the poor butter problem. Farmers who are already successfully delivering good products to the creamery have usually provided for themselves a convenient source of supply for the ice, suitable houses for storing the ice and ice water tanks for the immediate cooling of the milk and cream. In parts of New England, although the dairymen often hold cream on the farm four days in the summer and seven days in the winter, they deliver practically all their product while sweet. After it reaches the creamery it is pasteurized and shipped a distance of from 50 to 300 miles and may still be sold in these remote localities in the form of sweet cream.

OBITUARY

PORTER

Mrs. Elizabeth, wife of William P. Porter, of Lock Haven, died at Hollidaysburg, Pa., on Thursday, aged 76 years. Mrs. Porter had been in failing health for the past year or so, but her death was somewhat unexpected. She is survived by her husband and two sons, O. Bruce, of Clearfield, and Archie H., of Lock Haven.

Undertaken E. B. Waters, of Lock Haven, went to Hollidaysburg yesterday to bring the body to Lock Haven and the funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The body will be taken to Jersey Shore that afternoon for interment.

Mrs. Porter had been a resident of Lock Haven for a great many years and was an active member of Trinity Methodist church for years. She was a teacher in the Sunday school and had charge of the primary department up to a few years ago. She was connected with Sunday school work for over 40 years and many of the present teachers and members of this school were at one time her pupils. She was a devoted wife and mother, an earnest and faithful Christian woman whose influence for good will live in the lives of those with whom she touched during her long years of usefulness.

Deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kissell, who resided near Jersey Shore, and had many friends in that section.

cently completed constructions of a permanent auditorium downtown, which cost $2,000,000, inside the grounds another has been erected, and Leland Stanford University at Palo Alto and the University of California at Berkeley have thrown open their auditoriums.

Big Buildings Finished

For the past month the general public has been excluded from the exposition grounds while the last of the buildings were being finished and the exhibits were being put into place. When the gates were thrown open today, the big fair was virtually complete. All of the larger buildings were finished and in permanent shape and only a few of the smaller buildings and concessions remained to be completed.

Of the 20 foreign buildings within the grounds all were finished by Jan. 1 excepting the pavilions of France, Italy, Siam, Portugal and Panama. The French building, a reproduction of the Palace of the Legion of Honor, was the last of the foreign buildings to start construction and it will be finished in a very few days. The following is a partial record of the two years work the result of which is the big exposition of today:

Built on Sand

San Francisco won the government's support for its exposition against determined opposition by southern congressmen who wanted to center the federal appropriation on a proposed exposition in New Orleans. The work of preparing for the exposition, which had been suspended pending this decision, then went forward with renewed energy. Ground was broken Jan. 1, 1913, on a stretch of sand covered with debris and old structures. More than 70 acres were reclaimed from San Francisco bay. Six hundred and thirty acres of marsh land were converted into a veritable garden. Under the direction of the department of landscape gardening the former arid waste was made to bloom until today, when the fair opened flowers were blossoming everywhere on the grounds.

The "zone" of the exposition is to this fair what the "Midway Plaisance" was to Chicago and "The Pike" to St. Louis, having attracted amusement promoters from all parts of the United States and Europe. It was complete when it opened today.

War Does Not Affect It

When the great European war broke out last summer, it was predicted by some that the attendance of the San Francisco fair would be seriously affected. President Moore of the exposition company, denied this and he declared today that if the war affected the exposition at all it would be advantageously. Thousands of persons who have been in the habit of visiting Europe every spring or summer will visit San Francisco and California this fall, he believes, so that instead of being affected the fair will really be helped. Railroad officials are preparing to accommodate tremendous crowds of tourists and local hotel men assert that their reservations during the coming months bear out the railroad's forecast.

First Big Event

Next Saturday (Feb. 27) the Grand Prix race will be staged bringing together the foremost automobile drivers in the world.

RIGHT OF BOROUGH TO ACQUIRE PLANTS IS ESTABLISHED

and completely as the defendant has in its possession and under its control, the data of cost of erecting and maintaining its water plant, and the dates and amounts of dividends by it therefor declared, and, also, if so desired, permission to make a final examination of the plant and property.

The water company appealed to the supreme court from the judgment on which the mandamus was based. In affirming the lower court Judge Stewart, of the state supreme court, on January 2, 1915, said:

"The principal question raised is whether the 7th section of the act of April 29, 1874, under which the proceeding was begun, is not repealed by the act of May 31, 1907. If the latter repeals the earlier act, the present proceedings of course must fall and the judgment be reversed. * * * The repealing clause in the act of May 31, 1907, invalidates only such prior acts as are inconsistent with its provisions; it contains no express repeal of the earlier act of April 29, 1874, therefore the latter remains in force except as it conflicts with the earlier act both may not operate. Both have to do with the acquisition by the municipality of water works owned and operated by private interests. A very marked distinction between the two is that one, the earlier, provides for an adverse acquisition by the municipality, upon fixed terms to which the water company must submit."

Judge Stewart then quotes the seventh section of the act of 1874 as follows:

"It shall be lawful, at any time after twenty years from the introduction of water or gas, as the case may be, into any place as aforesaid, for the town, borough, city or district into which the said company shall be located, to become the owner of said works, and the property of said company by paying therefor the net cost of erecting and maintaining same, with interest thereon at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, deducting from said interest all dividends theretofore declared."

The judge says: "It was thus made a condition of the charter of such companies—evidently in view of the fact that the exclusive privileges given them, under the terms of the act, might become oppressive to the municipality, that after 20 years enjoyment of the franchise given, they could, upon the demand of the municipality, and payment of the prescribed consideration, transfer their entire property to the latter. The act was compulsory. * * *

"For the reasons stated the judgment is affirmed."

It will be noticed that the question of the borough of Reynoldsville's ability to purchase the water plant in that borough was not brought up by the supreme court. The court regarded this as not in any way connected with the question of the right of the borough of Reynoldsville to demand the right to examine the books and records of the company. That right has been sustained by the state supreme court, and the decision of the court affects the controversy over the proposition of the Clearfield borough council to examine the books and vouchers of the Clearfield Water company, and the company will no doubt be willing to concede this right to the borough council without further objection, if the council is still inclined to consider the municipal ownership of the water plant.

AMERICAN NAVY READY TO GUARD SEA RIGHTS

Twenty Battleships Awaiting Orders to Protect Interests of United States

TO ENFORCE RESPECT FOR OUR COMMERCE

Sinking of Neutral Ships by Torpedoes Regarded as Indicating a Dangerous Situation—While President Wilson Does Not Believe Germany Will Go to the Length of Attacking American Vessels. There Is Fear in Other Quarters That the Kaiser's Submarines Will Cause Loss of American Ships or American Lives.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The United States navy is being put in readiness for action. It is an admission by the government that the situation is so grave that almost anything is now possible.

The only thing the government can do, in the opinion of the president and his cabinet, is to be prepared for any eventuality, even such as may require the use of the navy and army in order to enforce respect for Germany and every other nation for the lives and property of citizens of the United States.

Germany Wars Against Neutrals. Dispatches announcing the sinking of one neutral vessel and a French ship yesterday showed that Germany is evidently determined to make war against neutrals when found within the limits of the war zone announced by Germany, and this means that the next vessel sunk may be one belonging to the United States.

The president and his cabinet discussed the situation for several hours yesterday and the president is keeping the closest possible touch with all developments. The most significant announcement, however, is that the vessels of the navy are being put in readiness for sea operations. This was made by Secretary Daniels.

Twenty Battleships Ready. Twenty battleships, the secretary said, are now in readiness to respond to any orders that may be given them. Others are being put in readiness and the work of preparation includes all the vessels ranging downward from the battleships to the smallest fighting and defensive craft.

While this is true, the president and members of the cabinet profess to believe that nothing will occur which farther will strain the relations between the United States and Germany.

Will Hold Nations Responsible. It has been decided that in the re-

YOUNG DUBOIS MAN SUICIDE AT RENOVO

Norman Gilnet, a citizen of DuBois, but who had gone to Renovo, where he was employed at the Pennsylvania roundhouse, committed suicide sometime Wednesday night. Gilnet, who was in ill health and who is said to have worried because a letter he expected did not arrive, is believed to have taken his life through despondency.

Wednesday evening he retired to his room in his boarding house, and that was the last seen of him alive. The letter he had been looking for arrived Thursday evening and it was taken to his room by his landlady. Receiving no answer to her knock she opened the door and saw Gilnet sitting upright in a chair, a revolver in his hand. The man was dead, having been instantly killed by the revolver shot many hours previously.

Gilnet was about 26 years of age. He had resided in DuBois some time, going to Renovo about a year ago and engaging in work at the roundhouse. He was not married and is survived by his parents and one brother.

Russians Declare Germans Have Made False Claims

(By United Press)

Petrograd, Feb. 20.—The Russian general staff is flatly accusing the German and Austrian governments of having made false claims of victory and of prisoners taken.

The Russians say that the case has been exactly the contrary. At Bucharest the Russians have made a retreat, but it was ordered for specific reasons and was perfectly conducted, and the Russian loss was small. The veracity of the reports may be gauged by the fact that the Austrians reported that they had taken 20,000 prisoners in the recent retreat, when in fact there were only 12,000 soldiers in the army at Bukovina. The total loss was 7 officers and 1007 privates. The same is true of the German statements.

The measure would make it unlawful to "exhibit or display for sale any food unless it be covered or protected from contact or contamination by any animal, fowl or insect."

Violations would be made punishable by a $100 fine, three months imprisonment or both.

GREATEST OF WORLD FAIRS OPENED AT SAN FRANCISCO

Vast Pageant in Which Thousands of Persons Joyously Participated

No Formal Ceremonies Marked the Beginning of the Panama-Pacific Exposition—Liberty Bell in Philadelphia Rung for Second Time in Seventy-five Years.

(By United Press)

San Francisco, Feb. 20.—President Wilson today threw his voice over 3000 miles of continuous wires and opened the Panama-Pacific exposition. Directly after opening the exposition he pressed the button at his side, which threw open the gates in Machinery Hall and started the "Fountain of Energy" which stands in front of "The Tower of Jewels." Secretary of Interior Lane is representing the president at the exposition.

Before the exposition was opened guns were fired and a great parade passed through the streets and avenues. The Japanese and Chinese had over 1000 in that part of the parade reserved for "representatives of other nations."

The Panama-Pacific International exposition represents an expenditure of $50,000,000. The critical judgment of experts pronounced the eleven main exhibit buildings, its five courts, 250 pieces of statuary, mural paintings and lighting effects one of the most magnificent ensembles of buildings and grounds ever achieved.

An enormous part of the outlay is represented in the "zone," the amusement street of the fair.

The exhibit palaces include a total area of 2,657,183 square feet. Sixty thousand exhibitors will fill this space, the promoters of the fair declaring that the exhibits will cover the arts, industries and resources of the entire world and summarize the achievements of human history.

Many Special Events. Not only will the exposition be remarkable in its exhibits showing, but in its special events, congresses and conventions, spectacles and pageants. The department of congress has listed between 400 and 500 national and international organizations which will hold their meetings or conventions here. It is estimated that an average of 100 conventions will be held every day during the life of the exposition which will last until December 4.

To house these meetings the city and exposition management have re-

County Candidates Coming to Front

There is no dearth of patriots willing to serve their county in the fat offices which are to be filled by the voters next fall in Clearfield county. Already a number of candidates have notified their friends that they intend to "run for office," while the air is full of rumors of other citizens who are keeping their ears to the ground in order that they may not miss the call of the voters.

Unless the present legislature changes the date of the primary elections to an earlier day the voters will in September nominate candidates for all but two county officials—sheriff and district attorney. The county offices to be filled are the following: County commissioner, prothonotary, register and recorder and county treasurer. Thus far the following have signified their intention of competing for the nomination:

County Commissioner—Republican—Samuel Hamilton, Hugh Kline, T. R. Weiner, Jesse A. Dale, H. H. Spencer, W. T. DeHaas, D. D. Miller, L. M. Impson, George R. McClellan.

Democrats—M. L. Farrell, Kinsey Sloppy, H. L. Bowman.

Prothonotary—Republicans—John H. Moore, Milford Bratton, John E. Johnson.

Register and Recorder—Republicans—Toney Evans, W. E. Paterson, Ed Chase.

Democrat—Richard M. Reed.

County Treasurer—Republicans—Al Kline, H. L. Jones, Amos H. Rumberger.

Democrats—Austin H. Haney, Ed Shirey.

There may be other aspirants for these offices who will be smoked out later, and the list is certain to be big enough to make the race for the nomination a lively one.

VOTING FOR CASH ENDS AT 10 O'CLOCK TONIGHT

Tremendous Vote Deposit Marks Progress of Day—Candidates are Bunched

WINNERS WILL BE ANNOUNCED TONIGHT

Three of the Young Women Who are Contesting for the Chief Prizes—the Trips to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, are Sure to Win, and it Depends Upon their Own Exertions as to Which Three Candidates Will Get the Highest Number of Votes—Race is Still Open to Willing Workers.

At last the day for awarding the $50.00 in added cash prizes in the Progress' popular voting contest is here and at 10 o'clock tonight the vote count to determine the happy winners will be started. This time has been anxiously looked forward to by all of the ambitious vote getters and all of the ladies have been making elaborate preparations for the tremendous rush of voting that will come tonight.

Within the few short hours that remain will be deposited and counted the votes that will name the winners of the $25.00, $15.00 and $10.00 cash prizes that were added to the prize list two weeks ago. Just who will make the best showing, lead the field and carry off the first prize is a matter of much interest and absolute uncertainty. The voting from all quarters has been very heavy throughout the day and this evening is sure to produce the greatest rush of voting thus far experienced in the contest. There will be many surprises and the lady who can spring the biggest surprise is going to get that $25.00 in cash.

The voting and subscription getting efforts of all contestants for the past several days has been strenuous and it looks as if all the ladies are bent on the same purpose of winning the best cash prize. Up until the paper went to press this afternoon, clipped coupons and subscriptions had been steadily pouring in from all sections of the county, and all contestants were anxious to have far surpassed their own previous efforts. Records, prize extension and long term subscriptions are noted among the business of all contestants and the battle at the close of the hour tonight is sure to be a lively one.

Many Voluntary Subscriptions. Many persons have called at the Progress office during the past few days to make voluntary contributions.

Rang the Bell and Startled the Pupils

When the schools in the Market street building were preparing for dismissal at noon Friday the pupils and teachers were startled to hear the school bell ring an alarm of fire. There was some little excitement, but by playing the piano and otherwise soothing the children all of them got out of the building safely and were marched a short distance down the street.

It was at first thought that a real fire had broken out in the building and that the janitor had sounded the alarm, but subsequent investigation proved that a lad had performed that act in a spirit of fun. The boy passed a bad quarter of an hour with the principal, and it is likely that neither will indulge in such a joke for some time to come. Fortunately, most of the pupils believed that the signal was that usually sounded when a fire drill is given.

German Reports Fighting Are Flatly Contradicted

(By United Press)

Paris, Feb. 20.—By Henry W. Wood.—Flat contradiction of German reports in the north are being issued by the war officers in the Champagne and Argonne regions. Their reports state that everywhere the advantage has been with the allies. War officials say that Germany had made these reports deliberately in the hope of influencing the Italian parliament, which is now in session, to remain neutral.

If you buy out of town, and we buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think of it?

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1915

Good evening! What part are you taking in the work of upbuilding Clearfield?

If you go abroad this summer, be sure to take your aeroplane umbrella with you.

If you are bothered by a spring poet, shoot him on the spot or any other part of his anatomy.

President Wilson's shipping bill has been laid on the shelf, and the president will follow the bill later.

Don't get excited until a German submarine attacks an American vessel, then prepare to march upon Berks county.

Many persons condemn Billy Sunday for his sensationalism because they do not want to be reminded of their sins.

Possibly Russia is playing a strong strategic card in permitting Germany to capture and feed some of the czar's surplus soldiers.

If George Washington were living today, it would be difficult for him to make a candidate for the presidency and be unable to tell a lie.

Germany might save more food for her own people, if she were to release the half million prisoners she claims to have captured since the war began.

Germany short of food? What has become of the large stocks of provisions which that country is said to have had on hand, sufficient to last the people for years?

What this state wants are game laws for the benefit of the legitimate hunters, not in the interest of the pot hunters and game hogs who are back of the Kalbfus bills.

Clearfield merchants who realize that an advertisement in the Progress is read by more prospective customers than is any other daily newspaper in Clearfield county.

Trouble is, the young men who loaf on the sidewalk to the discommoding women never read the newspapers and do not know what nice things are being said about them.

And at that, Germany is right in declaring that England would resort to drastic tactics if she were placed in the same position as that in which the fatherland finds itself.

The slowness in which federal offices are being filled may be explained on the supposition that Mr. Bryan cannot find "deserving Democrats" in sufficient numbers to fill the places.

Texas proposes to enact a law prohibiting the carrying of deadly weapons to church, and it is not made plain whether this bill is aimed at the toughs or at women who wear big hatpins.

People who are advising the Belgians to leave their own country and settle elsewhere never stop to think that the Belgians might want to remain in their own country because they love it.

Word comes from Amsterdam to the effect that Germany is now fighting "without regard to consequences." Well, what else has Germany been doing ever since she started in to destroy Belgium? She certainly has had no regard or consequences to other people.

Bryan, Hobson & Co., who are trying to get up a war with Japan, might find themselves incapacitated by age or mental disabilities if hostilities between the United States and Japan were to start.

New Yorkers want Sunday baseball, but the saloon keepers oppose this, claiming it would injure their Sunday business. We thought all saloons were prohibited by law from opening on the Sabbath day in Gotham.

A cigarette dropped in a pool room set fire to a hotel in Ebensburg and a quarter of a million dollars worth of property was destroyed. The fellow who dropped the cigarette lives to repeat the trick in some other hotel.

The Panama-Pacific exposition was formally opened today, and the biggest fair the world has ever seen will last until December. Many eastern people would like to attend the fair, but the fare is just a little too steep for them.

New York is the only large city in the United States bearing the same name as the state in which it is located, but there are many towns in counties of the same name which will some day be just as important as New York is, relatively.

STARVING OUT GERMANY

Great Britain is fully justified in preventing foodstuffs from reaching Germany, if this can be done, and Germany is equally justified in endeavoring to procure the foodstuffs. But neither nation has a right to endanger the lives of neutral people or to interfere with the legitimate traffic of these countries, unless the latter are discovered to be supplying food to one or the other belligerent. Germany proposes to attack with submarine boats all ships carrying food or armament to England, while England seeks to protect her own merchant vessels from German attack by flying on them the flags of neutral countries.

The United States has been forced to demand of Germany that she take special pains to see that the German submarines do not attack American ships. The German government—which is the kaiser—has replied that if the American ships sail within the war zone defined by the kaiser they must run risks similar to those encountered by English ships. This condition of affairs is very annoying to the American government, for if a German submarine were to attack an American ship and sink her, thus causing the death of Americans, the government of the United States would be compelled to regard the action as an unfriendly one.

On the other hand, England has been admonished not to use the American flag for the purpose of deceiving the Germans. Germany has declared that this attempt to deceive her has made it incumbent upon her to regard all ships entering the war zone as being in the service of England and that under the circumstances it would be the safest plan for the American ships to keep away from the danger zone. There is no doubt that the action of England in using the American flag to protect her own vessels has increased the perils of American vessels, and the English course must be condemned as being without regard for the welfare of American shipping.

That Germany is fighting for her self-preservation is apparent, and that she will continue to fight "regardless of consequences" no one doubts. Her people are demanding food, which they cannot get because of the British blockade. To injure England and prevent food ships from reaching London the kaiser is prepared to go to any lengths. Already two Norwegian ships have been sunk by mines and torpedoes and the vessels of other neutral nations will not be respected by Germany. If, however, the kaiser continues to destroy neutral ships he will bring about what he would be supposed to wish to prevent—the joining in the war of the neutral states, all of whom would unite with the allies in crushing Germany.

A DOUBTFUL REPORT

The news service which furnishes the Progress with its daily report of the happenings of the world is regarded as one of the most reliable associations in the United States. We believe this new service is in the main accurate; at least the Progress has heretofore found the news it sends out trustworthy, and we would regret to learn that our confidence in the reliability of the association had been misplaced.

The reports of the war in Europe, of the doings in congress, of accidents and crimes and of nearly all other happenings of public interest which have been transmitted to the Progress through the United Press have been entirely satisfactory so far as accuracy is concerned. Yesterday, however, this paper received a dispatch from Chicago which, although we printed it, because we have faith in the honesty of the news service, has caused us some perturbation since we saw the item in print.

In the hurry of gathering news from all quarters of the globe press associations are to be excused if, occasionally during the year they fail to verify their news. The item in question was so unusual that it at once struck us that somebody was trying to play a joke on the United Press. It was, therefore, only because of our strong faith and reliance in the integrity of the United Press that the Progress allowed the statement to find a place in these columns that out in Chicago thieves had robbed a newspaper office, getting away with one thousand dollars. If this report is true, then Chicago newspaper offices must be different from those in other parts of the country. But think of an editor having one thousand dollars all in one lump!

Text of German Note To American Warning

Berlin, Feb. 20.—The imperial government has examined the communication from the United States government in the same spirit of good will and friendship by which the communication appears to have been dictated. The imperial government is in accord with the United States government that for both parties it is in a high degree desirable to avoid misunderstandings which might arise from the occurrence of incidents which might trouble the friendly relations which so far happily exist between the two governments.

With regard to the assuring of these friendly relations, the German government believes that it may all the more reckon on a full understanding with the United States, as the procedure announced by the German admiralty, which was fully explained in the note of the 4th inst., is in no way directed against legitimate commerce and legitimate shipping of neutrals, but represents solely a measure of self-defense, imposed on Germany by her vital interests, against England's method of warfare, which is contrary to international law and which so far no protest by neutrals has succeeded in bringing back to the generally recognized principles of law as existing before the outbreak of war.

In order to exclude all doubt regarding these cardinal points, the German government once more begs leave to state how things stand. Until now Germany has scrupulously observed valid international rules regarding naval warfare. At the very beginning of the war Germany immediately agreed to the proposal of the American government to ratify the new Declaration of London, and took over its contents unaltered and without formal obligation, into her prize law.

Obeded Sea Rules
The German government has obeyed these rules even when they were diametrically opposed to her military interests. For instance, Germany allowed the transportation of provisions to England from Denmark until today, though she was well able, by her sea forces, to prevent it. In contradistinction to this attitude, England has not even hesitated at a second infraction of international law if by such means she could paralyze the peaceful commerce of Germany with neutrals. The German government will be the less obligated to enter into details as these are set down sufficiently, though not exhaustively, in the American note to the British government dated December 29 as a result of five months' experience.

All these encroachments have been made, as has been admitted, in order to cut off all supplies from Germany and thereby starve her peaceful civil population—a procedure contrary to all humanitarian principles. Neutrals have been unable to prevent the interruption of their commerce with Germany, which is contrary to international laws.

The American government, as Germany readily acknowledges, has protested against the British procedure. In spite of these protests and protests from other neutral states, the British could not be induced to desist from the course of action she has followed.

SUPERB VIEW OF

Vast City, Extending Two and a Half Miles Along Shores of San Francisco Bay, Presents Scene of Unparalleled Brilliance and Interest.

Forty-two Foreign Nations and Forty-three States are Officially Represented by Exhibits at Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

Two Hundred and Fifty Buildings in All and Sixty Thousand Individual Exhibitors Combine to Present Grandest Epitome of World's Progress Ever Celebrated.

TO give an adequate word picture of the mighty Panama-Pacific International Exposition is almost impossible. Particularly when one comes to a consideration of the color scheme and the indirect lighting system by which neither are nor incandescent is present to affront the eye. And yet, approaching the Exposition either from the bay of San Francisco or from over the hills on any of the car lines that travel to its gates, these are the first features that thrill with wonder and anticipation.

Like a Dream City.

Looking down on the hundreds of acres of gleaming domes and lofty spires, mammoth arches and extended colonnades, lawns and flowers, noble palms and forestation, with the kaleidoscope of colors blending over all, the vision is one to recall some dream city. Looking down on this same vision by night, with the subdued effulgence of millions of concealed lights investing the whole with an incomparable radiance, one in very truth seems to view the realization of a glorious dream. Two miles and a half in length and a half a mile in width, this spread of beauty curves in a demilune in a sheltered hollow along the shores of San Francisco Bay. The heights of San Francisco are back of it, the bay before and across the bay the Marin hills, with Mount Tamalpais, the majestic, rising in grandeur. This is the greater panorama that frames the Exposition, a situation just inside the Golden Gate.

This $50,000,000 Exposition is built to a general ground plan, the plot being laid out by Edward F. Bennett, the noted city planner of New York. From the main group of eight exhibit palaces, covering eighty-five acres, to the remotest corner of the Exposition, the structure of the Exposition has a relation to each other and to the boulevards in the general plan.

Palace of Horticulture.

Nine hundred feet across the South Gardens, on the west end, is the mighty Palace of Horticulture, its great dome of glass, 162 feet in diameter, being a reproduction of the dome of the mosque of Ahmed I. at Constantinople. Here will be assembled what experts have declared to be the most complete exhibit of horticultural products ever gathered under one roof in the world.

The Palace of Horticulture cost $341,000.

The four exhibit palaces fronting the South Gardens are, in the order they appear as one faces them from the gardens, the Palace of Varied Industries to the extreme right, next the Palace of Manufactures, Tower of Jewels, Palace of Liberal Arts and Palace of Education. The four palaces that complete this group face San Francisco Bay. They are the Palaces of Mines and Metallurgy, Transportation, Food Products and Agriculture.

These eight structures are bounded by four great boulevards, the Avenue of Palms on the south, the Avenue of Progress on the east, the Esplanade on the bay shore and the Avenue of Administration on the west.

Facing this group from the east, across the Avenue of Progress, is the Palace of Machinery, the largest frame building under one roof in the world, 987 feet long by 287 feet in width and costing $659,665. Here will be assembled everything in the world of machinery. A better idea of the dimensions of the behemoth of buildings when the fact is recalled that Lincoln Beachey made an exhibition flight with his aeroplane inside the building.

Four carloads of nails were used in its construction and 1,500 tons of nuts, bolts and washers.

Palace of Fine Arts.

Facing the main group of palaces from the west and across the Avenue of Administration and the Fine Arts Lagoon is the Palace of Fine Arts, curving around the lagoon one-fifth of a mile in length. This building is of steel and concrete, thoroughly fireproofed in order to protect the masterpieces of the world's art which will be on exhibition. The lagoon is one of the beautiful features of the outdoor decoration scheme. Thousands of birds, both wild fowl and tame, are already making it their home, while graceful swans and birds of plumage will glide over its limpid surface or preen in the flowers, shrubs and trees of its shores.

The Palace of Fine Arts cost $550,000.

The Palace of Fine Arts, Machinery Palace and the Horticultural Palace comprise, with the eight other exhibit palaces and Festival Hall, the main architectural grouping of the central area of the Exposition grounds.

The dimensions of the buildings of the unit of eight are:

Palace of Varied Industries, 414 feet by 541 feet, floor area 219,000 square feet, height 67 feet, cost $312,621.

Palace of Education, 394 feet by 525

1.—Court of the Four Seasons, showing western portals, to the left, and, to the right, courts extending to the Marina and San Francisco Bay. There are like the splendor of the architectural and sculptural adornment. The facade extending toward the bay is that of the Palace of Food Products.

2.—The marvelous effects in the night illuminations can be appreciated from this picture taken of the Greek-American colonnade of the Palace of Fine Arts. Facing the limpid waters of the Fine Arts Lagoon, the bases of these mighty columns bedded in the foliage that fringes its shores, the effect by night is a vision of beauty long to linger in the memory. The north and south wings of this colonnade extend 1,100 feet along the Fine Arts Lagoon.

3.—The great triumphal arch, the Arch of the Rising Sun, surmounted by a symbolic sculptured group, "The Nations of the East." The howdah upon the elephant rises 185 feet above the floors of the Court of the Universe.

4.—Among the rare exhibits in the Exposition's continuous live stock show are these long tailed Japanese chickens, which are bred especially for the emperor of Japan and whose valuation runs to as high as $2,000 for a single bird. These chickens are housed in glass, this precaution being necessary to preserve the fine quality and sheen of their wonderful feathers.

5.—On the left in this view of the Avenue of Palms is the stupendous Tower of Jewels, 435 feet high, or as high as the average thirty-five story building. This tower is in seven successive terraces and is crowned by a great globe, symbolizing the world. The tower is adorned with 125,000 cut-glass prisms that tremble with the wind. At night they scintillate with all the colors of the rainbow as flashlights play upon them. On the right is seen the imposing doorway of the Palace of Liberal Arts, after the famous portal of the Santa Cruz hospice at Toledo, Spain.

Lesson VIII.—First Quarter, For Feb. 21, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. iv, 1-13, 18. Memory Verses, 10, 11—Golden Text, Jas. 1, 22—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

As we read this chapter and the two following and vii, 1, 2, we cannot but notice the frequent mention of the ark of the Lord, or the ark of God, or some of its other titles, and when we recall that it was a principal vessel in the tabernacle and the only one of all the tabernacle vessels that continued to be used in the temple of Solomon, that it was made specially to be a receptacle for the two tables of the law, that over its blood stained lid or mercy seat and between the cherubim the glory of the Lord was revealed, and that from above the mercy seat the Lord communed with Moses, we must be persuaded that this ark had a wonderful significance. And when we read in Rev. vi, 19, of the temple of God in heaven being opened and there being seen in it the ark of His testament we stand in still greater awe before this holy vessel. It is mentioned forty times in the books of Moses and twenty-eight times in Joshua, chiefly in connection with the crossing of the Jordan. In our own chapter and those following it is mentioned thirty-seven times, so that we can easily see that the interest centers upon it.

Lesson verse 2 shows us Israel smitten before the Philistines, and we think that we hear again the words of Joshua, "O Lord, what shall I say when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies?" (Josh. ii, 8.) But, as then, so now, it was because of sin in the camp. As the elders considered the present defeat they did not seem to think that the difficulty might be with Israel, nor did they turn to the Lord, but said, "Let us fetch the ark of the covenant of the Lord that it may save us" (verse 3). The presence of the ark caused Israel to shout with a great shout, and when the Philistines understood that it was because the ark was come into the camp they said that God was come into the camp, and the gods that smote the Egyptians. On the part of both Israel and the Philistines it seemed like pure superstition. The latter knew no better, but for Israel to put confidence in the ark rather than in the Lord reminds us of their worship of Aaron's golden calf and, away beyond the time of this lesson, their worship of the serpent of brass (II Kings xviii, 4).

Is it not the same today with those who think there is any merit in the mere reading of a chapter in the Bible, or saying a prayer, or taking the communion, or in any religious formality? Anything that is not real heart dealing with the living God is only a form of superstition. The Philistines were stirred to great fervor by the cry of their leaders, "The strong, girt yourselves like men and fight" (verse 9), and the Lord delivered Israel into their hands so that 30,000 were slain, including Eli's two sons, and the ark of God was taken (verses 10, 11). Poor old Eli waited with fear and trembling for the news from the battle, and when he heard the sad news, and that the ark of God had been taken to fall off his son's back and had broken his neck and died. He was ninety-eight years old and had judged Israel forty years (verses 12-14). I think that while outwardly it was a broken neck it may have been inwardly a broken heart. In the same day it seems as if Phinehas' wife was also taken away (verses 15-16), so that a very calamity came to the house of Eli in one day (iii, 34). Thus suddenly have great events transpired again and again, and so shall it be at the end of time.

The story of the ark in the hands of the Philistines, chapters v and vi makes us think of Jerusalem, a burdensome thing for all people, and that all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces (Jer. xli, 23). The Philistines found the ark a very grievous thing to have in their midst, and after a few months (vi, 1) they were glad to send it back to Israel. The story of the new cart and the two milk cows tied to it, with their calves shut up at home and the cows taking the straight way to Beth-Shemesh, towing as they went, but not turning aside to the right hand or to the left (vi, 7-12), is a wonderful record of the hand of the Lord upon dumb beasts and brings to mind the dominion over all sheep and oxen, beasts of the field, fowl of the air and fish of the sea that has had some foreshadowings all the way along, but will be fully seen when the kingdom comes (Is. vi, 60, Heb. ii, 8).

The men of Beth-Shemesh rejoiced greatly to welcome the ark, and they offered burnt offerings and sacrifices unto the Lord, but they made a sad mistake when they looked into the ark, and they suffered greatly for it. As we said at the beginning of this study, the ark was made to keep the holy law of God, which Israel could not keep. The blood sprinkled upon the mercy seat from year to year (Lev. xvi) told of the demands of the law met by a substitute, even Christ, the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth (Rom. x, 4). Life never was nor could be by the law, which can only bring us all in guilty before God and is therefore called the ministration of death (Gal. iii, 21; Rom. vii, 10; II Cor. iii, 7).

days and made subscription payments to the vote credit of the various contestants. Many more persons will call at this office and leave new or renewal subscriptions to the daily or weekly Progress before the closing hour of 10 o'clock tonight. The mails, too, have been bringing their quota of coupons, subscriptions and good wishes for the ladies.

Votes Sure to Run High
A number of the contestants and several of their friends and co-workers have made anxious inquiry of the contest department regarding the voting at this time. The general point of these inquiries was how high the vote is likely to go for the first cash prize.

To all of these inquiries we can simply say that we have no idea and no means of knowing how high the vote will go, and of course could give no information of this kind if we did know. One thing is certain, however, and that is that the vote deposit of all of the contestants for the past two week period will be very much heavier than was expected. This is assured by the excellent success of the contestants during the past few days and more especially by the big rush of voting today.

The only safe rule to follow for the contestants who expect to win the substantial cash prizes is to get and deposit every subscription that they can possibly get. One subscription that can now be had, if missed or neglected, might be just the one needed to make victory sure for the contestant. Friends of the contestants are sure to be most loyal at this important time of the contest and every lady should do her very best now, and then there will be nothing to regret after the clock strikes 10 tonight.

Three Sure to Win.
So, three of the active ladies in the cash prize contest are sure to be the winners of the cash prizes tonight. Of course not all can win and some are destined to lose just as others will win in this first rally of the big campaign. If every lady does her best in the vote getting now, however, she can win or lose with the same feeling of satisfaction and thereby her forces for the final week of voting that is yet to come and that will determine the winners of the grand contest prizes. It must not be supposed that because any lady is not the winner of one of the cash prizes that she will not be a winner of one of the big contest prizes next week, and neither is there any certainty that the winners of the cash prizes will be the winners of leading prizes at the end of the contest. What will determine the winners of the grand contest prizes a week from tonight will be the efforts of the ladies themselves and the assistance of their friends and co-workers at this time as well as during the one week that remains of the contest.

The active ladies in the competition for the cash prizes tonight, as well as for the grand prizes next week are running close and now they may yet be a winner in any event. Let it be worth the effort to win?

plies to the notes from both Germany and Great Britain, the United States will declare that each nation will be held strictly accountable for any damage it may inflict upon American commerce and for the loss of American lives for which they may be responsible.

It also has been declared that no representations will be made either to Germany or Great Britain concerning the way they shall conduct their warfare against one another.

From Attack by Germany
There is a strong feeling that both American lives and property are being lost as the result of attacks by Germany. With this fear, and there is full realization that such losses will produce an immediate crisis which will bring relations with Germany to the breaking point.

In the reply to the German note, the United States will reject absolutely the contention of Germany that neutrals will be themselves responsible if they suffer loss within the area which Germany has proclaimed to be a war zone. The United States will deny the right of Germany to close any part of the ocean to neutral commerce, and it will be insisted that Germany must, therefore, assume all responsibility for whatever happens.

CHAPTER V.

O'Connell Visits Angela.

NATHANIEL KINGSNORTH stayed only long enough in Ireland to permit of Angela's recovery. He went into the sick-room only once. When Angela saw him she turned her back on him and refused to speak to him.

For a moment a flush of pity for his young sister gave him a pang at his heart. She looked so frail and worn, so desperately ill. After all, she was his sister, and, again, had she not been punished? He was willing to forget the foolish things she had done and the bitter things she had said.

Let bygones be bygones. He realized that he had neglected her. He would do so no longer. Far from it. When they returned to London all that would be remedied. He would take care of her in every possible way. He felt a genuine thrill course through him as he thought of his generosity.

To all of this Angela made no answer.

Stung by her silence, he left the room and sent for his other sister. When Monica came he told her that whenever Angela wished to recognize his magnanimity she could send for him. She would not find him unresponsive.

To this Angela sent no reply.

When the fever had passed and she was stronger arrangements were made for the journey to London.

As Angela walked unsteadily to the carriage, leaning on the arm of the nurse, Nathaniel came forward to assist her. She passed him without a word. Nor did she speak to him once nor answer any remark of his during the long journey on the train.

When they reached London she refused to go to the Kingsnorth house, where her brother lived, but went at once to a distant cousin of her mother's, Mrs. Wrexford, and made her home with her, as she had often done before. She refused to hold any further communication with her brother, despite the ministrations of her sister, Monica, and Mrs. Wrexford.

Mrs. Wrexford was a gentle little white capped widow, whose only happiness in life seemed to be in worrying over others' misfortunes. She was on the board of various charitable organizations and was a busy helper in the field of mercy. She worshiped Angela, as she had her mother before her. That something serious had occurred between Angela and her brother, Mrs. Wrexford realized, but she could find out nothing by questioning Angela. Every time she asked her anything relative to her attitude, Angela was silent.

One day she begged Mrs. Wrexford never to speak of her brother again. Mrs. Wrexford respected her wishes and watched her and nursed her through her convalescence with a tender solicitude.

When O'Connell's letter came Angela showed it to Mrs. Wrexford, together with her reply.

"Do you mind if I see him here?" Angela asked.

"What kind of man is he?"

"The kind that heroes are made of."

"He writes so strangely—may one say unreservedly? Is he a gentleman?"

"In the real meaning of the word—yes."

"Of good family?"

"Not as we estimate goodness. His family were just simple peasants."

"Do you think it wise to see him?"

"I don't consider the wisdom. I only listen to my heart."

"You—love him?"

"So much of love as I can give is his."

"Oh, my dear!" cried Mrs. Wrexford, thoroughly alarmed.

"Don't be afraid," said Angela quietly. "Our ways lie wide apart. He is working for the biggest thing in life. His work is his life. I am nothing."

"But don't you think it would be indiscreet, dear, to have such a man come here?"

"Why indiscreet?"

"A man who has been in prison!"

and Mrs. Wrexford shuddered at the thought. She had seen and helped so many poor victims of the cruel laws, and the memory of their drawn faces and evil eyes and coarse speech flashed across her mind. She could not recall one coming into her little home.

Angela answered her:

"Yes, he has been in prison, but the crime was for his persecutors, not for him. Still, if you would rather I saw him somewhere else—"

"Oh, no, my dear child. If you wish it—"

"I do. I just want to see him again, as he writes he does me. I want to hear him speak again. I want to wish him Godspeed on his journey."

"Very well, Angela," said the old lady. "As you wish."

A week later Mrs. O'Connell arrived in London. They met in Mrs. Wrexford's little drawing room in the city.

They looked at each other for long moments without speaking. It was the old story of suffering and other's ease. They had been through the long valley of the shadow of death, and now they were both here.

But Nathaniel thought as he looked at her that the suffering he had gone through passed from him as soon as he saw her. It was worth it—these moments of his life when he was looking at her with the long black night, and when in the heat of the day with the sun's rays around him, the birds in the garden, with

I am a little weak—a little tired. That will pass too."

"If anything had happened to you—or ever should happen!" He buried his face in his hands and moaned:

"Oh, my God! Oh, my God!"

His body shook with the sobs he tried vainly to check. Angela put her hand gently on his shoulder.

"Don't do that," she whispered. He controlled himself with an effort.

"It will be over in a moment. Just a moment. I am sorry."

He suddenly knelt at her feet, his head bowed in reverence. "God help me!" he cried faintly. "I love you, I love you!"

She looked down at him, her face transfigured.

He loved her!

The heat of her heart spoke it. "He loves you!" The throbbing of her brain shouted it. "He loves you!" The cry of her soul whispered it. "He loves you!"

She stretched out her hands to him: "My love is yours, just as yours is mine. Let us join our lives and give them to the suffering and the oppressed."

He looked up at her in wonder. "I don't. Think what I am!"

"You are the best that is in me. We are mates."

"A peasant! A beggar!"

"You are the noblest of the noble."

"A convict."

"Our Saviour was crucified so that his people should be redeemed. You have given the pain of your body so that your people may be free."

"It wouldn't be fair to you," he pleaded.

"If you leave me it will be unfair to us both."

"Oh, my dear one! My dear one!"

He folded her in his arms.

"I'll give the best of my days to guard you and protect you and bring you happiness."

"I am happy now," and her voice died to a whisper.

Three days afterward Nathaniel Kingsnorth returned late at night from a political banquet.

It had been a great evening. At last it seemed that life was about to give him what he most wished for. His already wonderful array of brilliant preparations of seasoned statesmen and admirable speakers. Kingsnorth had spoken so powerfully. Being one of the only men at the banquet who had enjoyed even a brief glimpse of Ireland, he made the solution of the Irish question the main topic of his speech. Speaking lucidly and earnestly, he placed before them his panacea for Irish ills. His hearers were enthralled.

When he sat down the cheering was prolonged.

When he left the gathering he was in a condition of ecstasy. Lying back amid the cushions during his long drive home, he closed his eyes and pictured the future. His imagination ran riot. It took wings and flew from height to height. He saw himself the leader of a party—"the Kingsnorth party"—controlling his followers with a hand of iron and driving them to vote according to his judgment and his decree.

By the time he had reached home he had entered the cabinet and was being spoken of as the probable prime minister.

He poured out a liquor and stood sipping it as he turned over the letters brought by the night's post. One arrested him. It had been delivered by hand and was marked "Most Urgent."

As he read the letter every vestige of color left his face.

WHEN REED RULED

Johnstown Wasn't In It

By "Bud" Fisher

And Raised a Row in Congress by Counting a Quorum.

NOW THE QUESTION AROSE.

The Issue That Moved the "Czar" to Overturn Both Democratic and Republican Precedents and Put the House in an Uproar.

In his "Life of Thomas Brackett Reed," popularly known as "Czar" Reed, Samuel W. McCall relates how the great question of the quorum that was counted arose. The famous issue came up shortly after Reed's reelection as speaker in December, 1880. The Republicans had so narrow a majority that business would have been difficult even without the filibustering of the opposition.

On Jan. 20, 1890, Dalzell reported from the committee on elections an award of a contested seat to a Republican.

Crisp raised the question of consideration, and only 102 members responded, or two less than a quorum. Not merely was it beyond the power of the Republicans to produce a quorum at that time, but it appeared equally certain that they would not be able to produce one at any time during that Congress.

Reed had carefully planned to meet the emergency which had long seemed to him inevitable and had determined upon his course. But the element of doubt in the house would sanction the radical course which he meditated. He was intending to overturn not merely Democratic precedents, but Republican precedents as well.

Times almost without number the leaders of his own party had maintained that the constitutional quorum was to be determined by the roll call and not by the bodily presence of members. The position had never seriously been questioned that if a majority of the representatives failed to answer to their names on the calling of the roll there was no quorum present for the transaction of business, even if every member might actually be present in the hall of the house.

"Instead of ordering the roll to be called again Reed calmly said, 'The clerk directs the clerk to record the names of the following members present and refusing to vote.' He then proceeded to name a number of Democrats and among them Carlisle and other Democratic leaders who were present when their names were called and who refrained from voting.

"At once the house was in an uproar. There was an explosion as violent as was ever witnessed in a legislative body. The speaker's recital of the names was interrupted by passionate remonstrance. His course was denounced as revolutionary. For a considerable time the tumult stopped the business of the house. Reed remained unmuffled, and when the noise would for a moment subside he would add to his count of Democrats present and not voting.

"One member of much dignity, but not conspicuous for sense of humor, gravely arose with a book in his hand and said, 'I deny your right, Mr. Speaker, to count me as present, and I desire to read from the parliamentary law on that subject.' Reed called a hearty laugh by coolly saying in reply and with his customary drawl: 'The chair is making a statement of fact that the gentleman from Kentucky is present. Does he deny it?'

"After the noise had subsided sufficiently for the speaker to make a connected statement he proceeded to state the question to the house: 'The chair trusts this subject in orderly fashion and will submit his opinion to the house, which, if not composed in by the house, can be overruled on an appeal taken from the decision.'

"He then proceeded to state his opinion in a few words. Referring to the constitutional power of the house to compel the attendance of absent members, he said: 'If members can be present and refuse to exercise their function to wit, not be counted as a quorum—that provision would seem to be entirely nugatory. Inasmuch as the constitution only provides for their attendance, that attendance is enough. If more was needed the constitution would have provided for more.'

Disorder was renewed, but after a hot debate the ruling was sustained. Reed's party standing by him to a man, and the supreme court subsequently confirmed the point.

Art of Throwing Kisses.
"Young men of this country do not know how to throw a kiss gracefully," said a college professor. "It takes a young Mexican to perform the act gracefully."

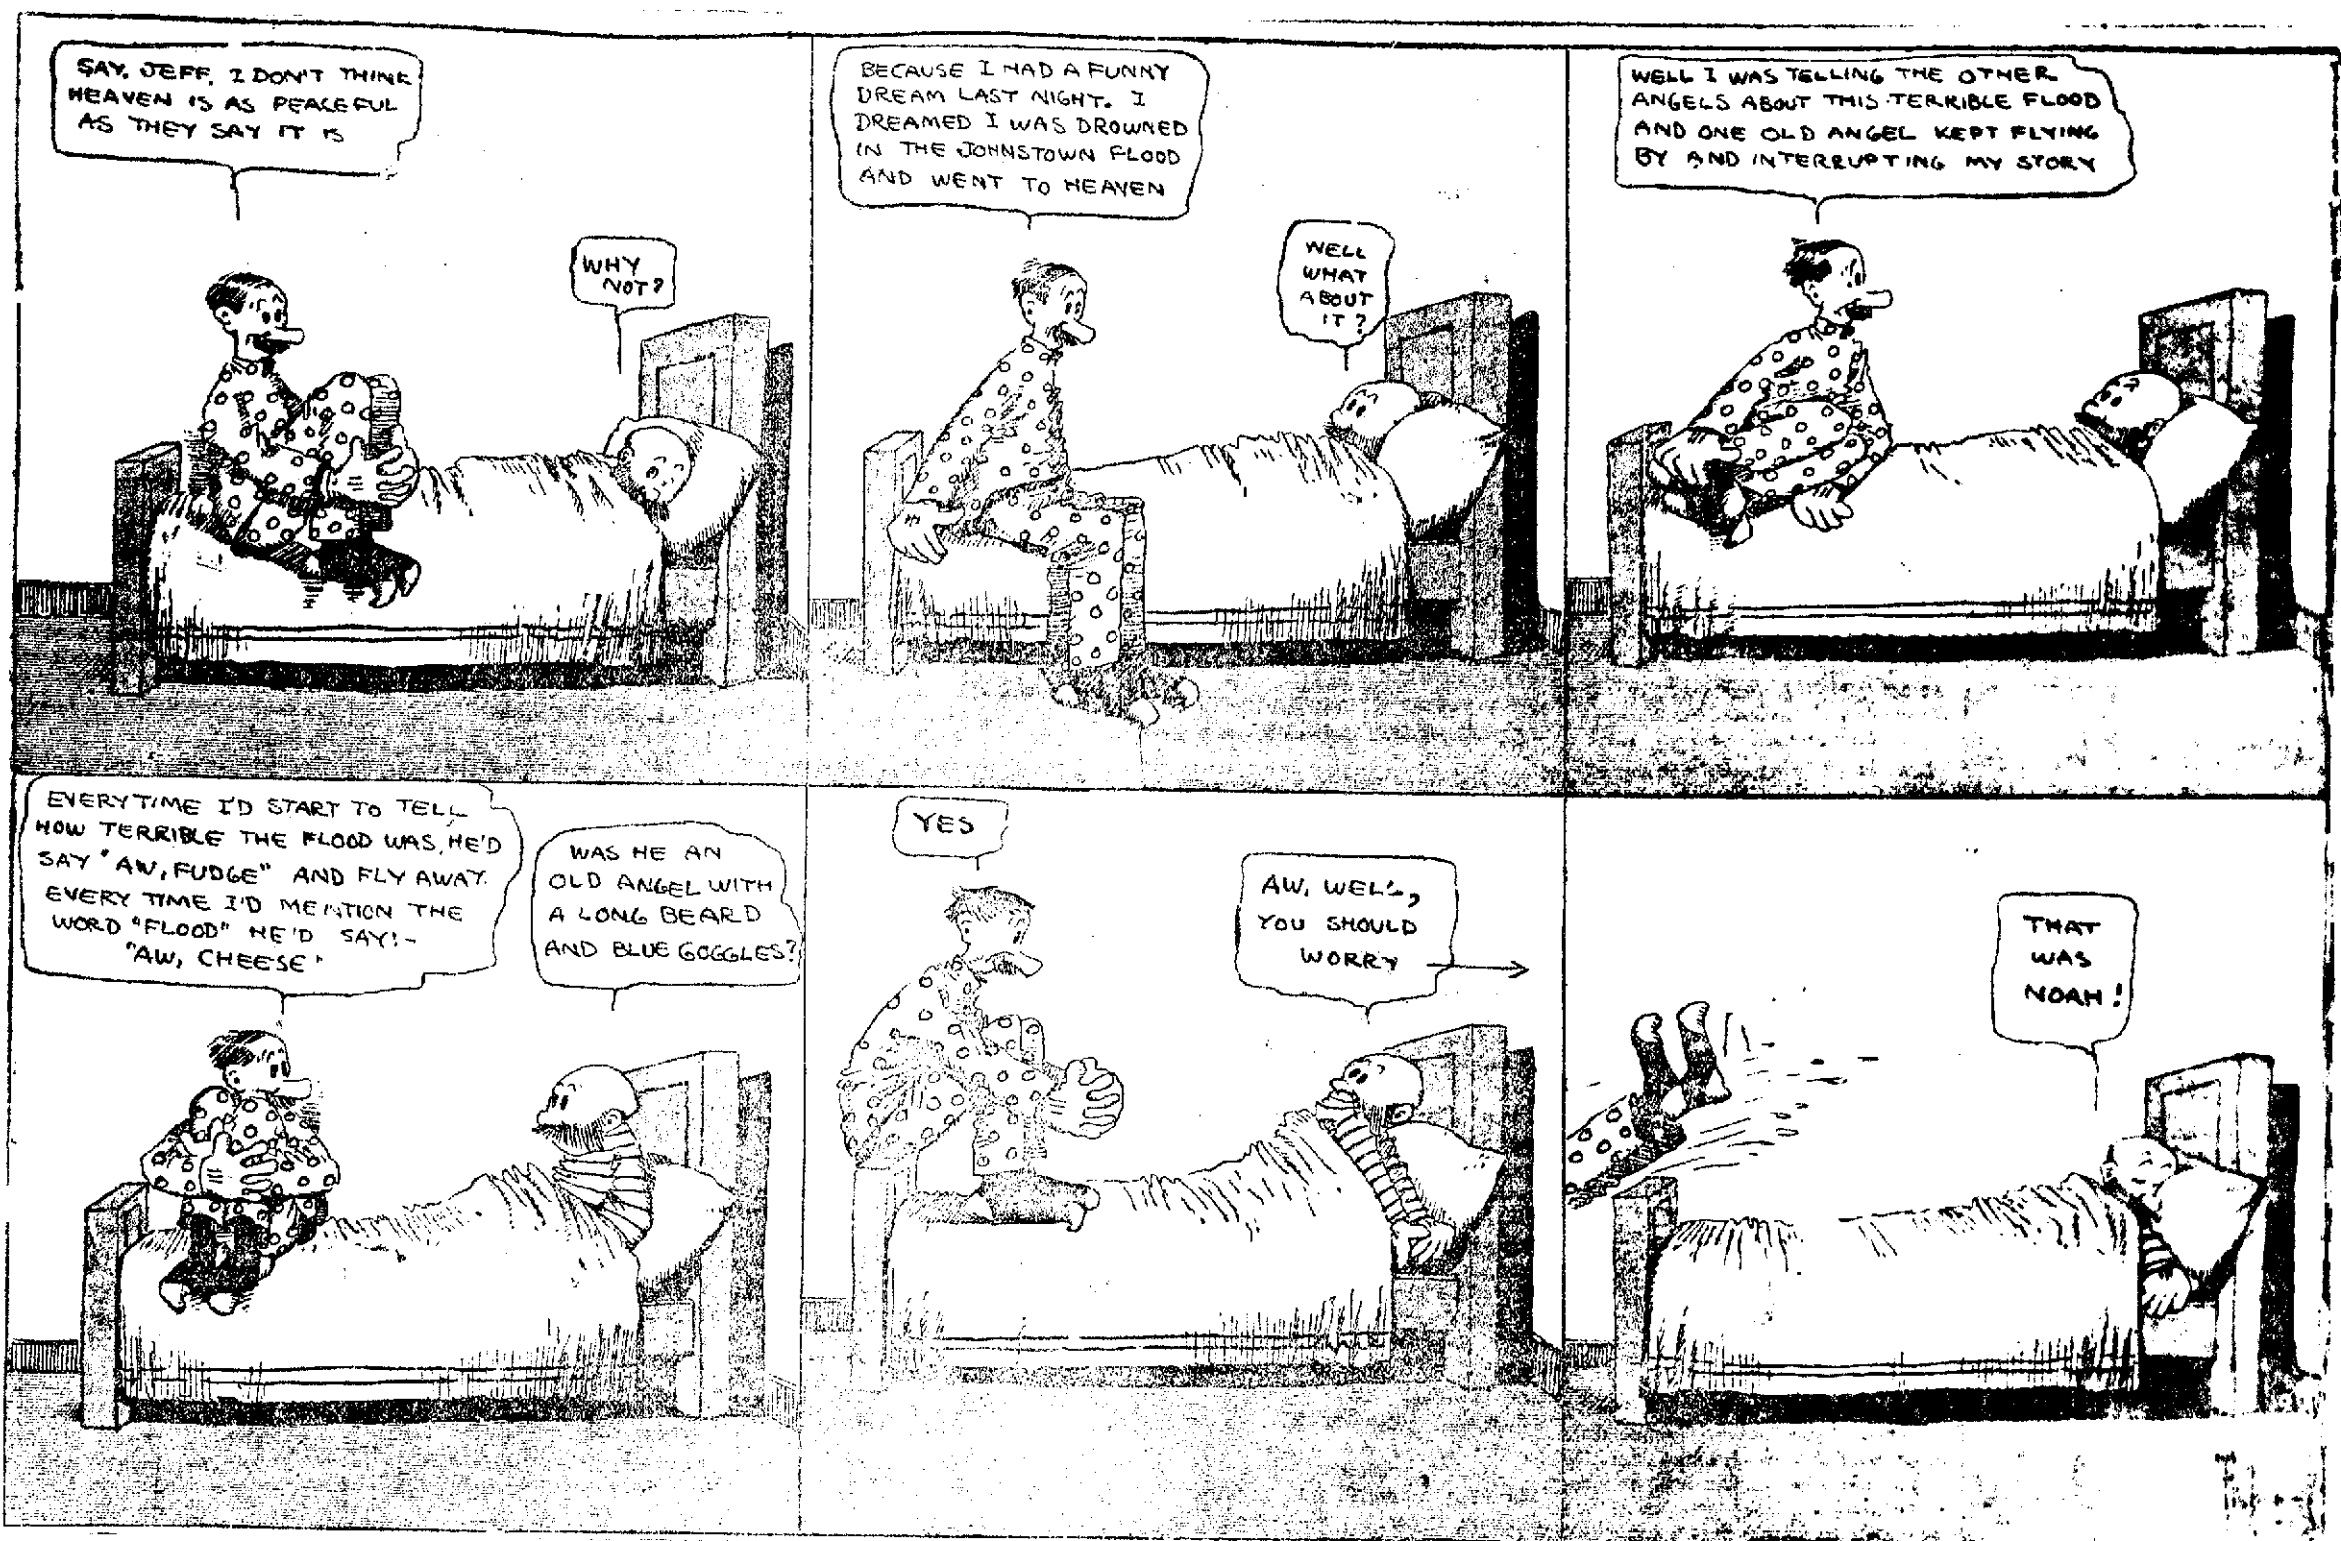

"He brings the tips of his fingers together, touches them gently with his lips and, spreading his hand out as he makes the throw, waits five sweet kisses to his ladylove by five different postures."—Chicago Tribune.

THE ANNUAL MOVING HABIT.

Already in local newspapers are appearing announcements of the thousands of farm sales that occur each year as tenants make their annual or biennial shifts. If the facts were known it would probably be realized that the cost in shrinkage of values brought about by such sales amounts each year to millions of dollars, a sum the tenants can ill afford to lose.

With many this annual transfer is purely habit. They go from one farm to another, year after year, apparently chasing a vain hope that sooner or later they will strike a place where they can succeed with less labor than they have put into their work in the past. This moving prevents their accumulating equipment, familiarity with a particular soil and locality and capital that they need to become farm owners. To the moving tenant a farm in the next township always looks a little more attractive than the one he is now operating, but the decision that the traveler pursues in the desert. Stick-to-it-iveness is a decided asset to the tenant who will carefully cultivate that attribute, and tenants who have become prosperous farm owners give abundant testimony to this fact.

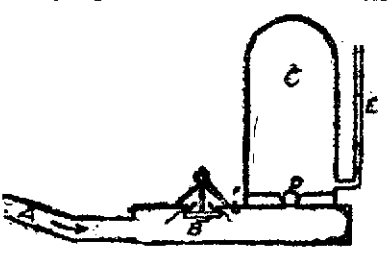

There is plenty of evidence to show that the farmer who sticks succeeds, while he who moves usually fails.—Country Gentleman.

USING A HYDRAULIC RAM.

Many Farms Possess Running Streams Which May Be Utilized.

[Prepared by Ohio Agricultural College.]
There are thousands of farms possessed of a running stream of good, clear spring water which is so far from house or barn as to be entirely useless for domestic purposes. It is possible in the majority of these cases, with a very small cash outlay, to lift this water from the spring and force it to the point where it can be used. The hydraulic ram furnishes the means. Given a spring flowing at least three gallons a minute as far as 300 to 500 feet from the house and as much as 100 feet below the level of the house, it is possible to raise a fair amount of this water and to force it in a running stream through the kitchen.

Here is a diagram of a hydraulic ram. A is the feed pipe leading from the spring to the ram. B is the waste valve out of which part of the water may escape. D is a ball valve leading to the air chamber C. E is the delivery pipe leading to the point of delivery.

its action is as follows: Water rushing down the drive pipe enters the base of the ram, and since valve B is naturally in an open position, will flow out. Soon the force of this flowing water is sufficient to close the waste valve by pressure from beneath, and the water thus entrapped is forced up into the air chamber through D. The flow into C will continue until the pressure in the chamber is equal to the force of the water from below, when D will close, and there will be a sufficient backward flow to allow it to open and water will again escape through this valve. As soon as sufficient momentum is gained by the flowing water, B is again closed, and the operation is repeated. At each beat a small portion of water is forced up through the delivery pipe. The action is entirely automatic and seldom gives any trouble. F is a shifting valve through which a small amount of air is sucked at each backward beat, thus preventing the air in the air chamber from becoming waterlogged.

For Better Butter.

One of the most common causes of poor quality butter is the lack of immediate, thorough cooling of the cream after separation. The dairy division of the United States department of agriculture has made a careful investigation of conditions on a large number of dairy farms, and the data obtained show that if properly cooled cream of the best grade can be produced with but little extra labor or expense. The principles involved are very simple and are easily understood.

A liberal use of ice which has been stored in winter to be used the following summer is one of the requirements for the solution of the poor butter problem. Farmers who are already successfully delivering good products to the creamery have usually provided for themselves a convenient source of supply for the ice, suitable houses for storing the ice and ice water tanks for the immediate cooling of the milk and cream. In parts of New England, although the dairymen often hold cream on the farm four days in the summer and seven days in the winter, they deliver practically all their product while sweet. After it reaches the creamery it is pasteurized and shipped a distance of from 50 to 300 miles and may still be sold in these remote localities in the form of sweet cream.
